

White House hails perking economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rise in living costs slowed in June while workers' buying power climbed at a record pace and a chorus of White House spokesmen hailed it Friday as solid evidence that inflation is cooling.

"The best combination of economic news to be released on one day in this decade," chief White House economic adviser Herbert Stein said of the two-tenths of one per cent rise in living costs and a report of a six-year high in the growth rate of the Gross National Product.

"This is real progress," said Secretary of Labor J. D. Hodgson, and President Nixon's press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, called it "real evidence of strong progress toward a healthier economy."

The Labor Department report on living costs said the rise on a seasonally adjusted basis was only one-tenth of one per cent, smallest in nine months. It added that living costs the past year were up 2.0 per cent, the first time in nearly five years that the annual increase fell below three per cent.

However, food prices increased a substantial six-tenths of one per cent because of sharply rising meat prices and an unexpected rise for fruits and vegetables after bad weather damaged crops.

The government's Consumer Price Index rose to 125.0 of its 1967 base of 100, meaning it cost $12.50 last month for every $10 worth of food, clothing, housing, transportation, medical care and recreation five years ago.

Stein told newsmen that the report of strong economic growth and a slowing of price hikes would hasten the day when federal wage-price controls would be lifted, but added it is unlikely controls would be lifted by year-end.

"It's time to look at our success in cooling inflation," said Hodgson.

"In 1969 the rate escalated to 6.1 per cent. In 1970 it shaded down to 5.5 per cent. In the pre-controls period of 1971 it fell further to 3.8 per cent. Since controls the rate has fallen to 2.7 per cent," he said.

"In the last three months we are down to 2.2 per cent annual rate. That is real progress. Consistent progress. The ball game may not be over, but we certainly are improving our score inning by inning," said Hodgson.

The report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics said the average paycheck of some 50 million rank-and-file workers rose $2.18 in June to $135.33, up $7.82 or 6.1 per cent in the past year.

After allowance for the rise in living costs, the purchasing power of the average paycheck was still 3.2 per cent, or about $3.90 per week, above a year ago, it said.

"This is the largest over-the-year increase in real earnings for any June since the series became available on a monthly basis in 1964," the report said.

Much of the gain in purchasing power was due to lower federal tax rates this year, it added.

The living costs report listed increases of six-tenths of one per cent for food, four-tenths each for housing and transportation and three-tenths each for medical care and recreation.

East industries face shutdown over smog

Associated Press

Concern shifted from power shortages to air pollution Friday as the eastern third of the country continued to swelter in a sooty steam bath. Ohio officials warned 125 plants to prepare to shut down as the smog threat heightened.

The National Weather Service predicted a measure of relief at least for parts of the Northeast as a cold front moved down from Canada over the weekend, but this provided little immediate help to areas blanketed with a dust-filled haze.

Air pollution alerts were in force in Pittsburgh, Washington and Baltimore. Plants were voluntarily controlling emissions in West Virginia. In Ohio industrial managers were waiting to see if they would have to close up shop.

The most acute pollution problem was in a four-county section of eastern Ohio in the steel-making region of the Ohio River Valley.

"Without question, this pollution is the worst it's ever been," said E. A. Schiele, control engineer for the Steubenville, Ohio, Air Quality Region.

He said industrial particles measured 906 milligrams per cubic meter. The desired health level is 60.

"Imagine getting up in the morning with a fog outside," Schiele explained.

"This is like fog, but it's particulate matter. You can feel it in your breathing. It's like having dust in your throat. One big problem is there's very little wind."

With John Cashman, the Ohio Health Department director, reporting that the pollution trend "seems to be upward," 125 companies were told to be ready to cease operations should an emergency be declared.

Later Friday, conditions improved so in the Ohio Valley that there appeared less chance of an emergency shutdown of the industrial plants.

Ohio state health officials attributed the drop in pollutants to cooperation by the industries involved and a pickup of winds in the area.

To the east along the Ohio River, Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr. of West Virginia said 10 industrial firms, including three power companies, had agreed to hold emissions to a minimum.

The coal-burning power companies, all in the state's northern panhandle, delayed going to peak load "capacities until later in the day, relying on power transported from plants in Michigan and Indiana to supply extra wattage in the early hours."

Steel and chemical plants in the panhandle around Wheeling and Weirton also agreed to limit operations where necessary to curtail emissions of pollutants. Formal alert status would be the next step if the air quality worsened.

With temperatures again climbing into the high 80s and into the 90s, utilities managed to weather the situation without serious breakdowns in power service.

Southwestern Pennsylvania remained under an umbrella of blue-white haze. A pollution alert was still in effect in Pittsburgh, requiring some 30 plants to cut back production to minimize emissions.

In nearby McKeesport, a hospital official reported that 30 patients had been treated for respiratory and heart conditions in a 24-hour period, a "significant" increase above normal.

labor. A day before the Senate vote, the 35-member AFL-CIO executive council decided to sit out the November race between McGovern and President Nixon.

McGovern optimistic despite poll showing

CUSTER, S.D. (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern flew back to South Dakota Friday with two plane loads of reporters, aides and advisers, ready to plan his strategy for a campaign he is sure will carry him to the White House.

Expressing confidence, McGovern shrugged off poor showings in some of the political polls. Before leaving Washington, where he stayed one day, he endorsed a strike by 3,000 Mexican-Americans against a Southwest clothing manufacturer.

"I am proud to join the AFL-CIO in support of this strike for basic rights," McGovern said of the walkout against the Farah Clothing Co. in Texas and New Mexico.

McGovern interrupted his South Dakota vacation to fly to Washington Thursday for a critical vote on a new minimum wage bill, a move that was widely seen as an effort to patch up his differences with organized

Nixon plans campaign attack on Demo solons

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon charted with his Cabinet and Republican Party leaders Friday a reelection campaign attack on congressional Democrats as big spenders who have buried his major legislative proposals.

During the two-hour meeting at the White House, Nixon disclosed he intends to keep Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., as GOP national chairman after the party's convention next month in Miami Beach.

But a spokesman said there was no discussion of whether the President would retain Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as his running mate. Nixon has said he will disclose his decision on that question prior to the convention.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler described Friday's meeting as "a strategy session relating to Congress and the strategy this administration will follow" if Democrats continue to "up the ante" on appropriation bills.

Nixon had made clear earlier he would veto any future spending measures which exceed his budget. Participants in Friday's meeting signaled also sharp campaign criticism of Democrats who vote for bigger domestic spending but refuse to approve the President's legislative proposals.

House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford told newsmen at the White House that the Democratic-controlled Congress has been passing "badly inflated" appropriation bills and said if the trend continues Nixon's budget could be "destroyed by pure politics."

Experts to 'smell out' monster

'Momo' -- is he from outer space?

LOUISIANA, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri monster smells terrible. The "International Unidentified Flying Object Bureau" thinks it may have a head shaped like a pumpkin and glowing orange eyes.

If so, it's a Giant Hair Biped (GHB) from outer space. On the other hand it might be a troglodyte.

But perhaps only Mark Twain, who used to live 20 miles up the Mississippi from this small Mississippi town, could really do it justice.

The monster, whatever it is, has been scaring people for the last 10 days. About 50 persons say they have seen it.

The UFO "bureau's" director, Hayden C. Hewes, believes it may be a giant hairy biped, one of the four categories the bureau has for creatures from outer space.

But there is a chance, Hewes said in Oklahoma City Friday, it is a troglodyte — an ancient cave-dwelling creature. Louisiana is downriver from Hannibal, Mo., Twain's boyhood home, and the area is dotted with caves.

Hewes said he and a team of researchers would come to Louisiana Saturday to investigate.

He said descriptions of the monster, which residents have named "Momo," are similar to that of hairy beasts he said have been sighted in the Florida everglades and near Vader, Wash., in 1971.

"Momo" is described as being six to 12 feet tall, covered with hair, walking erect, and emitting a foul odor. Hewes said the classic GHB has a large pumpkin-shaped head, glowing orange eyes, an ape-like growth of hair, large feet, clawed hands and arms that reach to the knee.

Hewes' UFO bureau describes hairy bipeds as ranging in height from about two feet to seven feet. They react violently if disturbed by humans and probably have the intelligence of a chimpanzee, he said.

Hewes said more than 300 GHB's have been seen in recent years. Some people think they are experimental animals sent to earth by their masters on another planet to carry out robot-type duties.

The Missouri monster first was seen July 12 by Doris Harrison, 15, in a wooded area near her rural home. Since then others have reported the creature crossing a highway with a dog in its mouth, lifting up the back end of a small foreign car, and growling at two young boys.

20 Belfast children injured Terrorist bombs kill 13

BELFAST (AP) — Guerrillas launched a savage bombing attack on civilian targets in the heart of Belfast Friday, killing 13 persons and leaving dozens wounded in debris-littered streets.

Two men also died in shootouts between British troops and gunmen of the outlawed Irish Republican Army. Fighting raged late into the night.

The army said at least 13 persons died in 20 explosions that rocked the city for 1½ hours. About 130 persons were taken to hospitals, many seriously wounded. More than 20 children were among the injured, who also included two 72-year-old women.

Responsibility for the bombings was claimed by the Belfast brigade of the IRA's extremist Provisional wing.

A gun battle developed late in the evening between troops and terrorists in a predominantly Roman Catholic area of Belfast known as the Markets.

The bombs hit at mid-afternoon, striking only civilian targets. They shattered three bus stations, two railroad stations, a bar and a series of stores.

"This was a real bloody Friday," said one officer of the Royal Ulster Constabulary.

"The city center is nothing more than a disaster area," a police spokesman said.

William Whitelaw, the British administrator of Northern Ireland, reacted to the carnage by announcing an immediate new drive against the IRA terrorists.

He flew to Belfast from London with Britain's defense secretary, Lord Carlington, and went into a two-hour conference with military leaders. A statement issued after the meeting said:

"In the light of these murderous attacks, the minister authorized certain operations against the terrorists to be undertaken forthwith."

William Craig, leader of the militantly Protestant Vanguard Movement, demanded that the British army launch an immediate campaign against the IRA and begin a program of "massive internment."

Another Protestant leader, the Rev. Ian Paisley, urged the army to "beat the bombers into the ground."

Prime Minister Jack Lynch of the Irish republic called the guerrilla attacks "savage and vile" and urged that leaders in London and Belfast accept his earlier proposal for three-way talks aimed at restoring peace in Northern Ireland.

"It's not enough to mourn our loss," he declared. The day of bombing and shooting was one of the gravest since sectarian strife erupted three years ago. The deaths reported by the British army raised to 466 the number of persons known killed since the fighting started in 1969.

CIA emerges from shadows to battle heroin accusations

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Central Intelligence Agency has begun a public battle against accusations that it knew of but failed to stem the heroin traffic of U.S. allies in Southeast Asia.

In recent weeks, high-ranking officials of the CIA have signed letters for publication to a newspaper and magazine, granted a rare on-the-record interview at the agency's headquarters in McLean, Va., and — most significantly — persuaded the publishers of a forthcoming expose on the CIA's role in the drug traffic to permit it to review the manuscript prior to publication.

The target of all these measures has been the recent writings and congressional testimony of Alfred W. McCoy, a 26-year-old Yale graduate student who spent 18 months investigating the narcotics operations in Southeast Asia. His book, "The Politics of Heroin in Southeast Asia," is scheduled to be published by Harper & Row in mid-September — barring delays caused by the intelligence agency's review.

IN HIS book, McCoy alleged that both CIA and State Department officials have provided political and military support for America's Indo-Chinese allies actively engaged in the drug traffic, have consciously covered up evidence of such involvement, and have been actively involved themselves in narcotic trade.

CIA officials said they had reason to believe that McCoy's book contained many unwarranted, unproven and fallacious accusations. They acknowledged that the public stance in opposition to

Fischer still spooked by camera

Combined News Services

Bobby Fischer was "feeling on top of the world" Friday after his second victory over world chess champion Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union, but the American challenger still refused to permit television filming of their games.

Fischer Friday night told Chet Fort, the ABC television producer in charge of filming the match, that he would not play Sunday in the sixth game of the match if cameras were used.

Fischer and Spassky are tied at 2½ points each in the 24-game match, which carries a purse of $250,000. Each has won two games. Another was a draw.

Fort, who conferred with Fischer in the player's Reykjavik, Iceland, hotel room, said Fischer had sent for his attorney, Paul Marshall of New York City, to negotiate further on a game-by-game basis whether the cameras are to be used. By previous arrangement the players were to receive 30 per cent of the television rights — approximately $25,000 each, Fort said.

"I cannot play chess knowing that these cameras stare at me through the holes. I cannot concentrate," Fischer told Fort, according to the producer. "I definitely want it filmed, but I cannot have it filmed when it bothers me."

Earlier Friday Fred Cramer, an International Chess Federation vice president and confidant of the temperamental challenger, said Fischer might agree to the cameras under his own conditions.

Fort did not specify what Fischer might be seeking in a game-by-game negotiation of camera use, but he indicated he would not go along on that basis.

Aside from issue of filming, Fischer's victory Thursday indicated to at least one chessmaster in Reykjavik that Fischer could move beyond the Russian's reach with only one more victory.

"Spassky is kaput" said Boris Najdorf of Argentina. "Bobby gave him two games in advance by objecting to the cameras, yet he slaughtered him in games three and five. Another win for him and Spassky might just as well go home."

Meanwhile Spassky went fishing Friday as his seconds put their heads together to save his chess title for the Soviet Union.

Spassky does not appear affected by his crushing defeat Thursday.

After losing to the American for only the second time, Spassky played tennis Thursday. The contenders meet again Sunday.

Retreat

President Nixon flew from hot and smoggy Washington Friday to his mountaintop Maryland retreat with former Secretary of the Treasury John Connally, presumably to discuss an as-yet undisclosed special assignment the chief executive wants the former Democratic cabinet member to undertake.

Accompanying Nixon and Connally when they stepped from their helicopter at Camp David after a 30-minute flight from the nation's capital was White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman.

Meanwhile, the White House announced Mrs. Nixon will participate tonight in a telethon to raise funds for the victims of the flood disaster caused by Hurricane Agnes.

No gain

U.S. Astronaut James B. Irwin said Friday neither he nor his Apollo 15 companions received any personal gain out of 100 envelopes bearing commemorative stamps they took to the moon without authorization.

Irwin, in Cali, Colombia, to attend the second Pan-American Congress of Baptist Men, said the Apollo crew gave the envelopes bearing stamp cancellations of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) to a West German friend for safe-keeping.

"This friend betrayed our confidence and sold some of the envelopes and at no time did any member of the Apollo crew make any personal profit out of the deal," Irwin said.

Bong Son recaptured

Combined News Services

SAIGON, Saturday — Forward elements of a 10,000-man South Vietnamese task force recaptured the key district town of Bong Son on South Vietnam's central coast and the Saigon government began to re-establish control, U.S. officials said today. "The government is there," declared one American official. "The district chief and province cadre are checking refugees on the street." The South Vietnamese troops battled their way up the central coast Friday and some elements crossed a river from the south and pushed through a 500-round mortar barrage into the town, about 300 miles northeast of Saigon. Other units surrounded the town to provide flank security.

In Washington, President Nixon said Friday that, in agreement with the Saigon government, the United States has proposed "new and generous terms to the other side which could bring about an end of the fighting" in Indo-China.

76 die in rail crash

SEVILLE—Seventy-six persons were killed early Friday when a high-speed express collided head-on with a local shuttle that sped past a red light after it was errantly switched onto the main Madrid-Cadiz line.

Another 130 persons were injured, many of them seriously in Spain's worst train disaster which took place about 50 miles south of here.

Egyptian leaders meet

CAIRO—Egyptian leaders were reported Friday to have started a series of meetings to determine future policy following President Anwar Sadat's ouster of thousands of Soviet military advisers. In Moscow the official Soviet news agency Tass, reported that the Egyptian armed forces were giving a "warm sendoff" to the Soviet military advisers asked to leave by President Sadat earlier this week.

Venus landing due

MOSCOW—Soviet scientists were prepared for a soft landing today of their latest spacecraft to Venus in the hope that it will supply the first chemical data on the surface of the distant planet. The 2,600-pound unmanned Venus 8 craft, launched March 27, is scheduled to enter Venus's hot and heavy atmosphere during the day, Moscow time, and send back signals that will enable scientists to compare the Venusian soil with the soil of the earth. Meanwhile the Soviet Union Friday fired eight Sputniks into orbit aboard one rocket in an exercise that simulated the launch of a military multiple-target missile. Tass said the carrier rocket hoisted eight unmanned "scientific satellites" into an orbital path about 900 miles above the earth for unspecified scientific research.

Striking Tenn. guards fired

PETROS, Tenn. — Striking Brushy Mountain State Prison guards were fired Friday after ignoring an ultimatum to return to work. Gov. Winfield Dunn announced in Nashville that all guards who refused to return to their jobs had been dismissed. The prison has a normal guard force of 170 men. The governor's office said 150 of these had been fired and 20 still were classified as working. He said the guards held a union meeting near the prison to discuss the dismissals, but had not been in contact with state officials. The state has not recognized the union.

Nuclear pacemakers

WASHINGTON — America's first implantations of nuclear-powered cardiac pacemakers in humans took place several days ago, it was disclosed Friday, and the two patients are reported doing well. The implants were made in two World War II veterans at the Veterans Administration hospital in Buffalo, N.Y., and the devices have an expected lifetime of at least 10 years, a doctor at the hospital said.

Cities win re-study of Rte. 39 plans

From Our State Bureau
SACRAMENTO — The State Highway Division Friday agreed to study a new location for the proposed Route 39 freeway after the City of Fountain Valley protested that the previously adopted location would completely enclose the city by freeways.

This, Fountain Valley Mayor Al Holliden told the California Highway Commission at its meeting in San Jose, would engulf residents in air and noise pollution.

The cities of Huntington Beach and Westminster, through which the proposed freeways also would pass, supported Fountain Valley's plea.

Commission Chairman Winston Fuller said the alternate point proposed by the three cities would be studied to determine its cost, feasibility, traffic service, and community impact compared to present route plans.

The route approved by the commission three years ago would run north-easterly across Beach Boulevard to just south of Talbert Avenue in Fountain Valley, then turn northerly east of and parallel to Newland Street through the rest of Fountain Valley and Westminster, then east of and parallel to Newland and Dale streets to Lampson Avenue in Garden Grove.

The change recommended by the three cities involves a 3.1-mile stretch running roughly from Adams Avenue to Edinger Avenue just north of the San Diego Freeway in Fountain Valley.

The proposed new route would begin at Adams between Golden West and Gothard streets in Huntington Beach, then veer northeasterly across the right of way of the Pacific Electric Railway. It then turns northerly to Warner Avenue in Huntington Beach, then northeasterly again across the San Diego Freeway to join the adopted routing at Edinger Avenue.

Cost of the present route for the freeway is $201 million, with $144 million for construction and the balance for right-of-way acquisition. Work is slated to begin sometime in 1977, but if the alternate route is deemed feasible, the whole routing question would be thrown open for public hearings and construction might be delayed as much as two years, a highway division spokesman said.

Chavez-Ortiz jury weighs 'wrongfulness' of hijacking

Associated Press

The case of Ricardo Chavez-Ortiz, who hijacked a jetliner and poured out his troubles to television newsmen at gunpoint, went to the jury Friday.

Jurors have been asked to decide if the 35-year-old East Los Angeles resident was aware of the wrongfulness of his actions when he commandeered a Frontier Airlines jet April 13.

Two court-appointed psychiatrists agree that Chavez-Ortiz was mentally disturbed when he committed the hijacking, but they disagree on the extent of the illness.

Dr. Frederick Hacker, a defense witness, contended that Chavez-Ortiz was suffering from a chronic form of paranoid schizophrenia and was acting out a delusion when he took over the plane.

Chavez-Ortiz believed that by hijacking the plane he would call attention to the suffering of Mexican-American people, Hacker said, he therefore was committing a "highly moral, highly worthwhile act."

Dr. Seymour Pollack, appearing for the prosecution in the five-day-old trial, held that Chavez-Ortiz's mental problems were not disabling.

Defense attorney Michael Hannon attacked Pollack's conclusions in his closing arguments, noting that Hacker had examined Chavez-Ortiz for 35 hours while Pollack's examination had taken only seven hours.

"Without really prying into him, his delusory system does not show," Hannon said. "Perhaps that's why Hacker was able to see the disease present that Pollack was not able to see."

Hacker first saw him on April 14, when Mr. Chavez-Ortiz was presumably in an acute state of his disease," Hannon added. "Pollack did not see him until six days later, until after his disease had passed."

Asst. U.S. Atty. Richard Rosenfield said Hacker lied in giving his testimony and "played the role of an advocate" in contending Chavez-Ortiz was seriously mentally ill.

He said Hacker lied about reading FBI reports of the hijacking and had taken the defendant at his word about his behavior during the flight to Los Angeles.

"He said he read the FBI reports," Rosenfield said. "If he had he would not have gotten the same results."

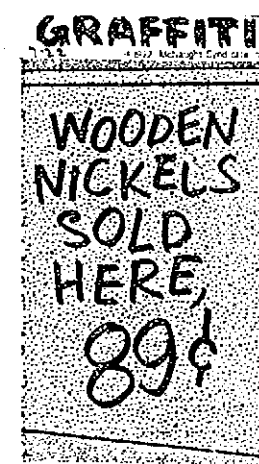

Before surrendering, Chavez-Ortiz demanded and received live radio time to talk about his personal troubles and grievances of the Mexican-American community.

Stuck for sticker

Over the Memorial Day weekend, my husband and I went camping and fishing with two other couples at Lake Casitas near Ventura. We bought yearly camping and boat stickers for $10 each. Evidently, the boat sticker came off in the water and was nowhere to be found. A park Casitas Municipal Water District, P.O. Box 37, Oak View, Calif., which operates the recreation area, and request a replacement boat sticker. We did and sent them a copy of the receipt for the original sticker. Their administrative officer, Orville Lee Horn, answered that they did not feel they had to replace the lost sticker. Can ACTION LINE help? We would like to go boating there again, but don't feel we should have to buy another sticker for this year. D.G.R., Torrance.

"We will not issue them another sticker. That's just our policy," ACTION LINE was told by Horn. He said the boat decals are backed with a strong, water-resistant adhesive. "We believe missing stickers have been stolen and because we are not a private concern, but are supported by taxpayers, we cannot replace all the stolen stickers." When asked if it wasn't a bit unfair to penalize the person whose sticker has been stolen, Horn said, "I'm sorry, there's just nothing we can do."

Own-your-own island

Is it possible to buy an island in the South Pacific? If so, where can I get more information on the subject? I've contacted the local libraries and a few real estate agents, but they do not have the information I need. T.H., Long Beach.

Every man's dream of owning his own South Sea island is not really possible unless you're a very wealthy dreamer, according to August Belden, vice president of Previews, Inc., a real estate firm specializing in worldwide exotic properties. The company does have some portions of islands for sale. Belden explained that virtually all of the South Pacific Islands are owned by private interests or controlled by a local or foreign government which generally are quite restrictive about who can purchase land. The government of the Fiji Islands, which now is independent from British rule, is the most cooperative about foreign ownership of land, but Fiji law states that only 15 per cent of the land can be owned by outside interests and most of that is gone. The few islands that are uninhabited are isolated because there is no water supply or rough currents make access difficult. For more information on property in the South Pacific, write to Belden, Previews, Inc., 68 Post St., San Francisco, Calif. 94104.

Negative answer

On Feb. 15, my negatives were sent by Western Camera, 3800 Anaheim St., to Fuji Film Processing Lab, P.O. Box 54481, Los Angeles, to be made into slides. After waiting more than a reasonable time for the slides to be returned, both Western Camera and I wrote to Fuji. They ignored us except for a form letter to Western Camera acknowledging receipt of one letter. The camera store tried to phone Fuji but couldn't get a number for them. The negatives are very important to me. I intended to use the slides in a travelogue presentation on Hawaii. Can you help? W.F.J., Long Beach.

Not much. But we were able to get a reply from Fuji. We wrote them at their Los Angeles address and received an answer from Phototechnology, Fuji Division, in Berkeley. They denied ever receiving the negatives. Now the Post Office is tracing the package and will inform Western Camera if it was or was not delivered to Fuji. Western Camera will keep in touch with you.

State plans $70 million excess land parcel sales

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The state of California plans to sell an estimated $70 million worth of excess land in 10,000 parcels over the next three years, the "Little Hoover Commission," was told Friday.

The sales plans were disclosed by John Maloney, state deputy director of the public works, who took over responsibility for excess lands after the commission charged in January that millions of dollars in excess lands were being mismanaged.

After a six-month reorganization, Maloney told the commission that the California Division of Highways will keep closer tabs on what land acquired along freeway rights of way may not be needed.

A crash program of selling it "will allay the commission's fears of mismanagement," Maloney said.

Commissioner Nathan Shapell, who headed a subcommittee which investigated the excess lands program, said he was impressed by Maloney's report. "As far as the paper is concerned this is one of the finest reports we've ever received," said Shapell. "But we must emphasize that writing down a program is not enough. It must be implemented. And we intend to keep close watch on the department to see just what kind of job they do."

Monthly reports were asked by Manning Post, chairman of the board which is known officially as the Commission on California State Government and Economy.

Said Post: "We cannot let the program slip back to the poor conditions of 1966 to '69."

The state highways agency now holds 12,576 acres of excess land with a retail value of about $70 million, Maloney said. Recalling that the commission referred in January to $100 million worth of excess property, "the $70-million figure is closer to the actual value," he added.

"We have established definite rules for determining what land is excess, where it is and what is being done about it," Maloney said.

"The excess program has been moved up from second to first-class status, and we should never again have an inventory this large."

Hearing slated on 7-member board

From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisors have scheduled a public hearing for 2 p.m. Tuesday to discuss a number of proposed County Charter amendments including expansion of the board from five to seven members.

The hearing in Room 381 of the Hall of Administration also will consider establishment of an elected executive officer who would be a type of county mayor.

These two revisions were proposed by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn who said the changes are necessary to "meet the challenges of the next 50 years."

Hahn pointed out that the present charter calling for a five-man board was established in 1913 when the population of the county was 600,000.

HIS PROPOSAL now is to have one supervisor for each one million residents which would bolster the board to seven immediately and nine in 1995 when the population is estimated to reach nine million.

Hahn believes the position of executive officer is needed to provide a system of checks and balances. Presently the five board members have both legislative and executive powers and therefore wield absolute control unlike a city council whose actions can be vetoed by a mayor.

Other charter amendments coming up for discussion include increasing membership on the three-man Civil Service Commission and abolition of the prevailing wage clause.

THE BOARD also will consider allowing probation periods of longer than six months for employees and removal of department heads and their chief assistants from civil service acts. Another amendment seeks to allow the county to contract with private hospitals for care of county patients.

Supervisors plan to announce a decision on the charter changes at a special meeting scheduled for Aug. 15. The revisions adopted then will be submitted as a ballot measure to be voted on in the November General Election.

Sword-gun dispute ends in killing

An argument about the merits of an 18-inch-long Japanese sword resulted in the death of a 35-year-old Bell Gardens man Friday, police said.

Charles Buttaro was fatally shot at the home of Ramiro S. Lujan, 36, 6409 Chateau Drive.

Bell Gardens Det. Sgt. Dan O'Donovan said Buttaro, Lujan and Maurice Doucette, Jr., 34, were drinking and discussing weapons at 3 a.m., when the shooting occurred.

Buttaro, holding the long, ornamental sword, reportedly told Lujan, "I bet I can get you first before you can pull the trigger."

Police said a blast from a high-powered rifle shattered the victim's jaw.

Doucette grabbed the rifle and began beating Lujan over the head, officers said.

When police arrived they found Lujan hiding beneath a pickup truck outside. They booked him on suspicion of murder.

3 policemen killed

BROCTON, England (UPI) — Three policemen returning from a police driving school course were killed Friday when their car hit another car.

Harbor stained by 250 gallons of spilled fuel

About 250 gallons of diesel fuel spilled into harbor waters near Berth 16 of Pier B, the state Department of Fish and Game said Friday.

A clean-up crew placed booms around the spill to prevent it from spreading.

Ralph Wells, a fish and game warden, said the state had asked the Coast Guard to join in the investigation of the source of the spill, which was discovered about 7 p.m.

Court rule threatens UI checks HRD warned on conformity

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Reagan administration said Friday it has been warned that a Los Angeles County Superior Court decision, if upheld on appeal, could halt distribution of unemployment insurance checks to Californians.

The State Department of Human Resources Development said it has been warned by the U.S. Labor Department that the court decision would place California's unemployment insurance program out of conformity with federal requirements.

The state agency said the Department of Labor then could cut off more than $36 million a year in federal funds which go to HRD to finance administration of its unemployment insurance offices and its employment service.

TOM GRIFFIN, chief of HRD's legal section, said "the only thing we could do for the lack of administrative money is to close the unemployment insurance offices. This would prevent distribution of the checks."

Griffin said the decision does not affect the money collected to pay jobless benefits but only the funds used to operate the unemployment insurance program.

HRD currently distributes unemployment insurance checks to 242,000 Californians.

Griffin said the cutting off of UI administrative funds could occur if the court decision is upheld or if the law is not changed by the Legislature. He said the state is readying an appeal of the decision.

HRD sponsored legislation to remove the conflict with federal law but it was killed earlier this month by the Senate Industrial Relations Committee.

In the decision last February, Judge Robert A. Wenke ruled that HRD could not disqualify a claimant for UI benefits because he quit his last job without good cause or was fired for misconduct unless the employer notified HRD of the termination reasons within five days after the employment ended.

HRD SAID the Labor Department warned that the court decision violates two federal requirements.

One is that benefits must be paid only to those persons who are involuntarily unemployed and not to those who are responsible for their own unemployment. The second requirement is that eligibility must be determined by HRD when a claim is filed and cannot be determined solely by the employer.

An HRD spokesman said more than 100,000 claimants a year are disqualified from benefits for those reasons. He said employers rarely give notice to HRD until after a claim is filed.

"To do otherwise would require all employers to assume that all ex-employees would file for benefits and would create heavy additional paperwork by employers and the state," the spokesman said.

Tax reform measure weathers first test

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A compromise $1.2 billion property tax shift-school finance bill supported by Gov. Reagan and Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti squeaked past its first Senate committee test Friday.

The measure would provide for property tax relief and increased school aid by raising the sales, income, business and motor vehicle taxes.

Moretti and Reagan administration officials lined up three Republicans and two Democrats to send the measure to the Finance Committee on a 5-3 vote, the bare minimum required.

THE PROPOSAL will face its toughest hurdle next week in Finance, whose powerful chairman, Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, is steadfastly opposed to it.

Following Friday's vote, Collier told a newsman he is against the bill because it calls for tax increases in the face of a more than $400 million state budget surplus.

With the nearly half-a-billion dollar surplus, Collier asked, "how can you go out and ask the working man to put up his money?"

He added that the compromise bill would boost overall taxes for most Californians, an assertion Moretti vigorously denies.

Moretti has said the measure will mean that a couple with two children, earning $10,000 annually and owning a $20,000 home, would have their overall taxes reduced by $36 a year.

A RENTER with the same number of children and the same income would see his taxes reduced by $2, Moretti, D-Van Nuys, said. If the renter made $15,000 a year, however, his taxes would go up $53.

Despite Collier's opposition, Moretti told newsmen he was "very hopeful" the Finance Committee will approve the bill.

But he added, "It is a close question all the way along the line. It was close here (in the Revenue and Taxation Committee) and it will be close in Finance."

The bill proposes raising $555 million by increasing the statewide sales tax from five cents to six cents on the dollar. Income taxes would be boosted by $130 million, bank and corporation levies by $133 million and motor vehicle license fees by $103 million. Another $140 million would come from the budget surplus.

IN RETURN, schools would receive $345 million in additional funds and homeowners $700 million in property tax relief, including a hike in the homeowners income tax exemption from $750 to $1,750.

Renters would benefit through $125 million in refundable tax credits and the business inventory tax exemption would be boosted from 30 per cent to 45 per cent.

The money for schools includes a $25 million early childhood education program and $30 million for "disadvantaged" children in urban school districts.

During the two days of hearings on the bill, the League of California Cities said it is "by far the best tax reform program we have been able to support in the last seven years."

But the County Supervisors Association opposed the measure, contending its property tax rate limitations were "unrealistic and unworkable."

REAGAN has long insisted on the limits, saying they were necessary to insure the permanence of property tax relief.

Voting for the bill were Sens. Clair W. Burgener, R-San Diego; William E. Coombs, R-Rialto; George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach; James Q. Wedworth, D-Hawthorne, and John Holmdahl, D-Oakland.

Voting against were Sens. Clark L. Bradley, R-San Jose; Nicholas A. Petris, D-Oakland, and Walter Stiern, D-Bakersfield.

Senate votes to lop tax on gas tax

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate voted Friday to in effect lower the price of gasoline by about half a cent a gallon by eliminating a tax on a tax.

By a lopsided 33-0 vote, the upper house voted to remove the sales tax on the 11 cents of federal and state taxes motorists already pay, leaving the tax in effect only on the price of the gasoline itself.

Sen. James Mills, the San Diego Democrat who sponsored legislation to extend the five per cent sales tax to gasoline, said if the average motorist pays 30 cents for a gallon of gasoline, he would pay taxes on only 19 cents — the untaxed price.

The Senate action came on acceptance of a conference committee report on a technical bill by Mills.

The Assembly debated the conference committee report Friday and then postponed action until next week. The compromise measure must get approval from both legislative houses before it goes to Gov. Reagan.

Mills said there is no immediate prospect of legislation requiring service stations to post the sales tax on their pump price. Currently stations can either figure in the sales tax on the pump price or add it on later.

Adding the sales tax on later has confused some when they drove into a station that the advertised price included all taxes.

Proceeds from the sales tax added this year are to go for rapid transit systems.

Mills said the change would cost the state $46 million, local governments $11 million and rapid transit programs $2 million.

The new sales tax on gasoline went into effect July 1.

The conference committee bill is SB 9.

Carrier's primacy challenged
Russ A-subs said superior
By DREW MIDDLETON
New York Times Service

NEW YORK—The aircraft carrier's role as the Navy's primary weapon and the traditionalism of the present naval building program are challenged in this month's Proceedings of the United States Naval Institute, the most prestigious of American service publications.

Comdr. Roy Beavers expresses the fears felt by many other officers, that the nuclear-powered, nuclear-armed submarine, emphasized in the Soviet naval program, and not the carrier, is the dominant weapon of modern sea warfare.

Arguments doubt the carrier's primacy have appeared in Congress and in other professional publications in the past. They take issue with the Navy's basic concept of the carrier's superiority to all other sea weapons: a concept originating in the victories of World War II and endorsed by admirals who won recognition as carrier airmen in those victories.

BEAVER'S views appear in an essay in the July issue of the Proceedings. The essay won second honorable mention in the publication's prize essay contest for 1972.

The United States Naval Institute is a private, professional society of those interested in naval and maritime affairs. Although it is not a part of the Navy Department, articles in the Proceedings often examine issues that worry professional officers.

Admiral Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., chief of naval operations, is president of the institute.

Beavers bases his analysis of American naval needs on the argument that Soviet policy in this decade will be aimed at limiting American freedom of action.

AS EVIDENCE he cites an article in the Soviet journal, Soviet Law and Government, by G. A. Arbatov, considered by many to be Russia's leading expert on the United States. In this article Arbatov, assessing Soviet and American strategy, wrote that "the matter at issue is essentially that of limiting the freedom of action of imperialism—above all U.S. imperialism."

Beavers contends that the United States is building the wrong sort of Navy around the wrong capital ship, the carrier, to meet the Soviet challenge to American "command of the seas, i.e., capacity for assuring the use of the seas as required by the United States and its allies."

The Soviet challenge, he says, is based upon the submarine and "one to two hundred modern Soviet submarines, nuclear powered and armed with the latest missiles, can deny command of the seas to the U.S. Navy's surface forces."

"IT IS going to take a war at sea to prove that the U.S. Navy's capital ship—the aircraft carrier, though defended by its costly retinue of escorts and umbrellas of manned aircraft—is ill-suited to contest command of the seas against challenge emanating from the capital ship of the Soviet navy, the attack submarine," Beavers argues.

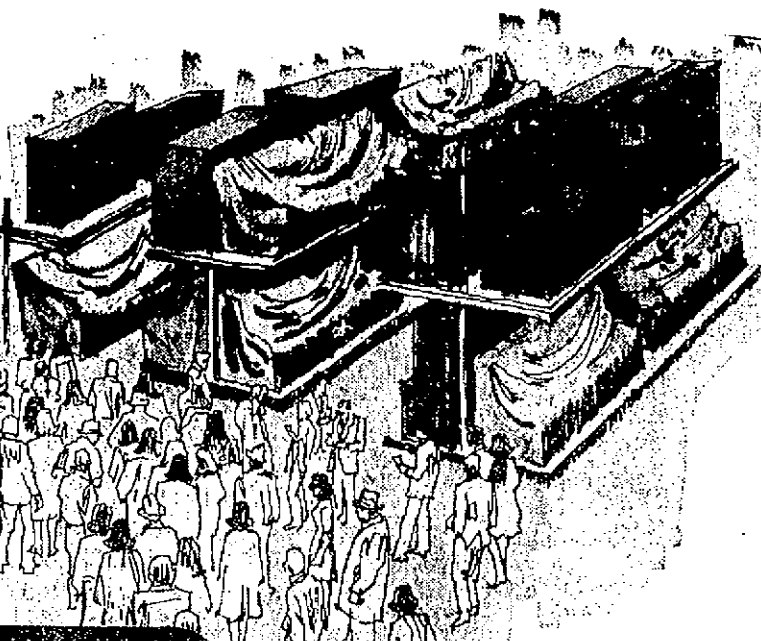

The Navy, the writer says, has refused to recognize that advances in submarine technology have given undersea weapons systems the edge over surface systems such as the carrier.

This echoes the argument made in 1970 by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., that "rapid technological innovations in missile development have made the carrier unusable in all but the most limited conflicts."

Viet forest fire storm efforts told
Project 'dud,' experts say

By ROBERT REINHOLD
New York Times Service

MISSOULA, Mont.—Well-informed civilian and military sources have disclosed that in an effort to clear away enemy-controlled forests, the U.S. made a number of concerted attempts to set huge fire storms in Vietnam during 1966 and 1967. The project was ultimately abandoned, they said, because the moist tropical rain forests would not burn.

The project was undertaken with the collaboration of fire-prevention experts from the U.S. Forest Service. They were detached from the service's Northern Forest Fire Laboratory in Missoula and, according to some reports, from the Pacific Southwest Forest and Range Experiment Station in California.

IN THE final attempt, called Operation Pink Rose, an area about the size of the city of Philadelphia was defoliated and bombarded with magnesium incendiary bombs in the Iron Triangle region northwest of Saigon, an area where the allied pacification program never had succeeded in eradicating Viet Cong influence.

An earlier attempt, aimed at a wooded area near Saigon was dubbed Operation Sherwood Forest. The result of the two attempts were so disappointing that no further efforts were made.

"It produced a lot of smoke and not a whole heck of a lot of fire at all," said a Pentagon spokesman, who confirmed that the fire attempts took place under the Johnson administration. He called them "test projects aimed at determining the feasibility of jungle-clearing by burning," and added that he could not provide further details of the project. It was conducted by the Advanced Research Projects Agency, a high-level research arm of the Defense Department.

THE disclosure comes at a time of mounting concern among some scientists and government officials that years of defoliation, bombing and burning have inflicted irreversible damage on the Vietnamese environment.

The target of the fire storm efforts were rare and desirable mahogany trees that many forestry experts consider a potentially valuable resource for the Vietnamese economy.

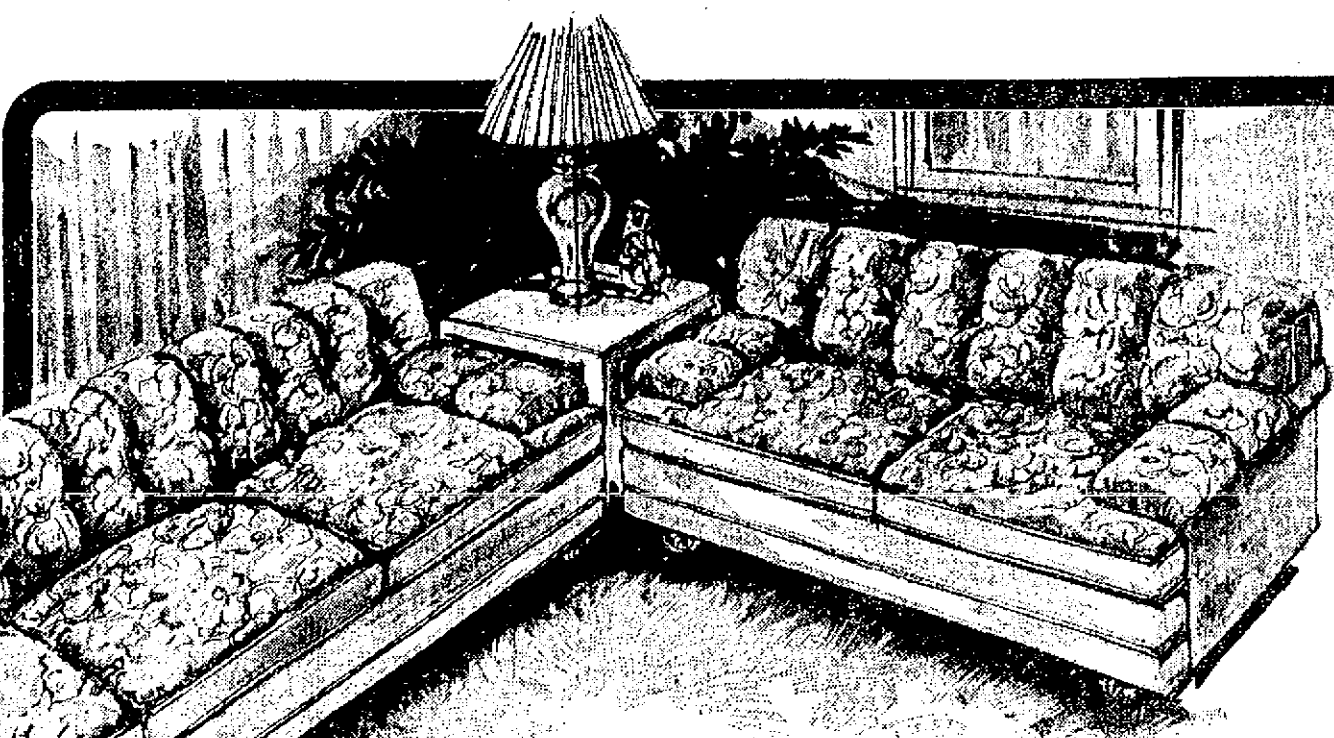

Had the burning succeeded, according to interviews with a number of experts on tropical vegetation, the trees probably would have been destroyed, replaced possibly by less useful bamboo and other coarse vegetation.

One military officer familiar with the project defended it on strategic grounds. Saying the areas—war zones C and D in Tay Ninh and Long Khanh provinces—were Viet Cong staging areas, he asked, "when you're fighting a war, do you want to save trees or lives?"

AT THE same time that the American foresters were trying to set forest fires, other U.S. Forest Service specialists were at work helping to build Vietnam's primitive logging industry and to improve timber management techniques, under contract with the Agency for International Development.

FIRE storms are a fearsome and little understood phenomenon. A fire storm, unlike an ordinary conflagration, packs tremendous energy. It sucks in air from all around, creating a convection column and mighty whirlwinds.

State agency charged with misuse of funds

By GIL BAILEY
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON—A set of mini "Pentagon Papers," obtained by Sen. Alan Cranston from a mysterious source, outline an ongoing civil war between the federal Office of Economic Opportunity, and the California State Economic Opportunity Office (SEOO).

The papers also charge misuse of state and federal funds by the State Economic Opportunity Office (SEOO).

As a result, Cranston this week asked that any further funding of SEOO, which is under the control of Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan, be halted until the investigative arm of Congress checks out the California operation and the allegations in the papers.

The 153 pages of letters, memos, including "eyes only" memos, and reports, charge that Reagan aides used the state organization as a weapon against local war on poverty groups.

Cranston's office will not say who provided the papers, claiming that information "would endanger someone's job."

However, a spokesman said, "the source is highly reliable. After the General Accounting Office (Congress' investigative arm) looked at the information, it felt an intensive investigation was warranted."

An examination of the papers by the Washington bureau of the Independent,

Press-Telegram disclosed a number of major complaints against the State Economic Opportunity Office, including the use of police and other law enforcement officers to check on the operations of the California Rural Legal Assistance and VISTA, which supplies help to community action groups like that supplied abroad by the Peace Corps.

SAN JOSE. Long Beach and Pasadena police officers are named in the papers along with state senators and a Gilroy judge.

In addition the papers charge the SEOO with a basic hostility to local poverty programs.

"The California SEOO is philosophically opposed to what it believes the community action agencies advocate and practice on behalf of the poor," a federal evaluation team, drawn from outside the San Francisco regional office, wrote in a March 26, 1971 evaluation report.

An "eyes only" memo from a San Francisco regional office coordinator to his superior credits Robert Hawkins, present SEOO chief with performing a "credible role," but adds:

"HAWKINS dilemma is that the governor's office (Ed Meese, assistant to Gov. Reagan) insists upon having the SEOO continue to perform an investigative role. . . . Meese utilizes the SEOO investigator as a form of patronage. . . .

"The SEOO is using the majority of its staff to perform investigative functions which are interpreted negatively by the community action agencies," said the earlier evaluation report.

"The SEOO has not acted as an advocate for the poor in keeping with OEO instruction 7501-1," the evaluation report added.

Besides the philosophic complaint, the papers contain a number of specific complaints including the charge that SEOO has overpaid some salaries and has paid more than $100 per day for a consultant in violation of federal regulations.

The consultant named was Thomas Berkeley of Oakland who was paid $10,000 according to the papers, for his evaluation of judicial impact on blacks.

"TOM BERKELEY is not on contract at this time but he will continue to be a loyal and trusted consultant on judicial," wrote John G. Sawicki, assistant director of SEOO in a letter in answer to that

Major ski area due at Bretton Woods

BRETTON WOODS, N.H. (UPI) — Bretton Woods, known primarily for hosting the 1944 world monetary conference, is planning a major ski area, it was announced Friday. A spokesman said the ski complex would be located on a mountain overlooking Mount Washington Hotel, site of the financial huddle at which the international financial system was devised.

complaint. The Oct. 5, 1971 letter, included among the papers, also admitted that Berkeley was paid the $10,000.

A separate complaint was filed against SEOO for its claim that the use of police officers' time could be counted in state funds used to match federal funds.

Federal OEO regulations forbid the use of public officials' time for such purposes.

In addition the memos, which detail the use of the time, also detail previously untold investigations conducted by the SEOO.

For example, San Jose police officers Sgt. Bruce Moore, Lt. Bart Collins, and Don Ewing, spent many hours in late 1970 and early 1971 with SEOO officials. In each case their time was credited in dollar amounts as part of the state matching funds.

THE MEMORANDUM sheets covering those interviews showed only "Santa Clara VISTA" as a reason for subject of the work done.

Also on the list was State Senator Donald Grimsby, three hours, worth $48, in regard to the Monterey County poverty program, and Gilroy Judge John Klarich, nine hours, worth $144, in regard to an evaluation of California Rural Legal Assistance.

In Long Beach Sgt. Warren Jones of the Long Beach police was listed for three hour interview worth $21, and Lt. Cowan for two hours worth $17, concerning evaluation of the local community action agency.

State Senator Fred Morley was also interviewed. His time was recorded at $8 an hour.

IN ALL the papers showed that the state was told by a regional auditor that it had spent $2,385 in federal funds and $84,522 in non-federal funds for non-federal expenses. Not all of the funds "disallowed" were involved in investigations.

However, one of the most controversial investigations of the SEOO was a lengthy one of California Rural Legal Assistance.

Three State Supreme Court judges from outside California appointed by OEO to examine the charges, called the result of that investigation "totally irresponsible."

The federal evaluation report quoted in the papers noted the close ties of SEOO with Reagan's office. It also said that both the governor's office and SEOO feel that the operation of the community action agencies and CRLA are "too liberal" and too close to the actions advocated by Saul Alinsky, the late community organizer.

Indians facing ouster in Mono

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — When is an Indian not an Indian?

When he doesn't live on federally owned lands.

When doesn't an Indian tribe live on federally owned lands?

When the United States Senate doesn't ratify a treaty negotiated with President Fillmore in 1851.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., outlined the foregoing Friday to a Senate committee in an effort to provide land for 60 members of an obscure Indian tribe which used to live near Bridgeport in Mono County.

The Indians are being evicted from their traditional lands because the private owners are claiming possession.

Because the treaty was not ratified, the land the Indians believed was their own was transferred to non-Indian hands, Cranston said.

He offered what he thought was a fair compromise Friday to the Senate Interior subcommittee on Indians.

The federal government owns 298,000 acres of land in Mono County. Cranston suggested that 20 acres of unoccupied federal land close to the tribal grounds be turned over to the Indians.

At this point, the U.S. Interior Department said no, according to Cranston.

The government says it can only make such transfers to recognized Indian tribes. The government only recognizes tribes that own federal lands, Cranston explained.

He called it a "Catch 22" situation.

Cranston hopes to see the Senate pass his bill SB 3113, which would give the Indians the land anyway.

Own immunity divides newsmen, says solon

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., author of a bill to give news media the right to protect their news sources, said Friday the news media themselves are split on whether reporters should be given immunity from being forced to disclose news sources.

Cranston introduced legislation after the U.S. Supreme Court said reporters questioned by grand juries can be forced to disclose confidential news sources.

The California senator met Friday with representatives of this country's publishers, the television networks, the Newspaper Guild, and others interested in the bill.

In a press conference later he said "some publishers" favor no protection for reporters while most favor some sort of protection with restrictions.

Cranston's bill says "A person connected with or employed by the news media or press cannot be required by a court, a legislature, or any administrative body to disclose before the Congress or any federal court or agency any information or the source of any information procured for publication or broadcast."

He said he still favors the broadest possible protection for newsmen and women but added that he is listening to other points of view.

Ellsberg jury sworn in over defense objection

A jury of eight women and four men was sworn in Friday in the Pentagon Papers trial in Los Angeles despite defense objections that the group was not fairly chosen.

Attorneys for defendants Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo maintained the entire panel of 100 prospective jurors did not represent a cross section of community opinion.

They also objected to the large number of potential jurors holding security clearances and the lack of young persons on the panel.

Two of the 12 jurors hold current security clearances, and most appear older than Ellsberg, 41, and Russo, 35. The youngest panel member is a woman bank employee who is in her late 20s. The judge refused a defense request earlier to reveal jurors' exact ages. The judge questioned prospective jurors himself rather than allowing the defense and prosecution to do so.

The oldest panel member is a white-haired Italian immigrant who said his only education was grammar school in Italy. The defense failed to oust him on grounds he would have trouble understanding the voluminous documents he'll have to read as a juror.

Both Ellsberg and Russo said later they still feel the jury is not representative of the community, but added this does not discourage them.

"It's a good jury of American citizens," said Ellsberg.

"I expect them to listen fairly and for their minds to be as influenced by the Pentagon Papers as mine was."

U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne, refusing to grant any last-minute motions by the defense, ordered the jurors to take their oath, telling the panel they were about to perform "the highest duty asked of an American citizen."

Ellsberg and Russo, both former Rand Corp. researchers who worked on government projects, are charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft in connection with the leak to news media of the classified Pentagon Papers. The documents revealed origins of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war.

The jury was sworn in only after chances ran out for both sides to oust potential panelists without cause, through peremptory challenges. The defense argued vehemently for more challenges, but the judge refused and, in protest, Russo passed the chance to use his next-to-last challenge.

NASA deplores scheme of 'first art on moon'

By VERN HAUGLAND

WASHINGTON (AP) — The space agency Friday deplored a new form of commercialization of Apollo 15 moon-flight souvenirs, the sale of high-priced statuettes, close on the heels of its seizure of 300 unauthorized postal covers.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the offer of Belgian artist Paul Van Hoeydonck to provide the Apollo 15 crew with a tiny piece of sculpture to be left on the moon, as a memorial to astronauts and cosmonauts who have died in space projects, was accepted with the understanding the action was not to be commercialized.

Now, in full-page advertisement in the current issue of Art in America magazine, New York City's Waldell Gallery is offering 950 copies of the sculpture, the "Fallen Astronaut," at $750 each.

The evening Star and the Washington Daily News, which published the story in its Friday editions, quoted the sculptor as saying "the sculpture on the moon belongs to me. I really don't see the shame about an artist selling his work." Van Hoeydonck was reached by the newspaper by telephone at his home near Antwerp.

A NASA spokesman said that when Van Hoeydonck offered to design the memorial it was indicated that he was simply interested in the lunar program and did not intend to profit from it personally in any way.

"If he made a special arrangement, there is nothing we can do about it," the spokesman said. "We have no way of stopping him."

NASA said Apollo 15 command pilot David R. Scott received permission from Donald K. Slayton, Copies of this small aluminum sculpture "Fallen Astronaut" have been offered at $750 each. The original was left on the moon by the Apollo 15 astronauts.

chief of astronaut activities, to take the sculpture to the moon. Slayton also authorized the mission to carry to the moon some 232 postal covers — specially stamped souvenir envelopes.

The astronauts also carried 400 more such envelopes without permission. Some 100 were sold in West Germany for a reported $1,500 each, but the astronauts, in a change of heart, refused to take the money. The remaining 300 unauthorized covers have been impounded at Houston.

At his home near Antwerp, Van Hoeydonck said there was no agreement on his part not to produce copies of the sculpture and offer it for sale as representative of the "first art on the moon."

The Belgian told newsmen he had been informed NASA did not want the sculptor publicly identified for a year, although the astronauts disclosed existence of the sculpture at a postflight news conference at Houston Aug. 12.

Van Hoeydonck said his identity leaked out little by little, and finally he discussed it openly on a telecast at the time of the Apollo 16 launch last April.

Meanwhile, the 100 postal covers advertised by Herman Sieger, the West German dealer, reportedly were snapped up at the $1,500 asking price.

"We understand that Sieger is interested in buying back any of the stamps he can," a NASA spokesman said.

"For some reason, they have been going up in value."

A stamp collector specializing in space-flight offerings said the Apollo 15 covers now might be worth $5,000 each. An offering of all the envelopes carried on the Apollo 15 mission — the 500 unauthorized ones and the 232 that were approved — could thus be considered to have a potential value of more than $3.1 million.

Of the 232 postal covers authorized for the Apollo 15 mission, 88 were given to the wife of astronaut Richard F. Gordon Jr., a member of the Apollo 12 crew.

NASA said Mrs. Gordon is a stamp collecting enthusiast and the 88 envelopes were to have been carried on Apollo 12 but apparently inadvertently were not taken aboard.

Other postal covers were aboard Apollo 12 but they were for personal use only, NASA said.

Cape may again be Canaveral

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate approved without dissent Friday a bill to restore the name Cape Canaveral to the geographic area surrounding the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

The bill, passed by a voice vote without debate, is aimed at nullifying an order by President Lyndon B. Johnson changing the name shortly after the assassination of John F. Kennedy in 1963. Johnson later said that he did so at the suggestion of Kennedy's widow.

The legislation does not involve the name of the space center which Johnson also changed from Canaveral.

Floridians have not objected to the new name for the center but have strongly objected to the new name for the center but have strongly urged the name Cape Canaveral be restored.

The Senate Interior Committee, after stalling on the bill for years, approved it last March with a note that Cape Canaveral is acknowledged by the Interior Department to be the "oldest continuously used place name on the American Atlantic coast line."

Its discovery is attributed to Ponce de Leon, around 1513.

In the House, Rep. Lou Frey Jr., R-Fla., whose district embraces the area, said he would urge the Science and Astronautics Committee to speed up action on his companion bill to restore the name to the cape.

Project head named for 2 space probes

PASADENA (AP) — The Jet Propulsion Laboratory announced Friday it has named Harris Schurmeier to manage the project which will send two unmanned craft by Jupiter and Saturn in 1977.

Schurmeier, JPL's deputy assistant laboratory director for flight projects, will be assisted by Raymond Heacock, space craft system manager; Dr. Ralph Miles, mission analysis and engineering manager; and Dr. Edward J. Smith, acting project scientist.

The mission, assigned to JPL by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, will explore interplanetary space between the Earth and Saturn, the planets of Jupiter and Saturn, and selected moons of those planets.

TWO 1,500-pound Mariner craft are to fly by both of the planets using the gravity of Jupiter to propel them on to Saturn. They will be launched in 1977.

'Boys club,' prayer arrows, the Quiz, 'Methodist' rabbi

By MARK CLUTTER

Pickets this week protested sending 70 poor boys to camp because:

1. The camp is Pendleton where Marines will teach the boys something about marching and small arms; 2. It is a boys only camp, no girls allowed.

These protests offer philosophical challenges to church leaders planning youth programs.

Has the world become so kind that men no longer need to study marching and small arms? (A Chinese leader said not long ago that China could afford to lose 100 million lives to achieve its military goals.)

If education becomes entirely coeducational, will society benefit?

From the dawn of time men have felt the need for the exclusive male society. Its separation from the world of women and domesticity is usually brief but is felt to be important to masculine dignity and morale.

Call it "the boys club." This need manifests itself in hunting parties, war parties, lodges, civic clubs, poker sessions, gangs, monasteries and the corner bar.

"The boys club" always maintains it is serving the whole society. In war it defends home and fatherland. In hunting it gets meat for the family table. In the monastery it prays for the good of all mankind.

And it may begin with the superiority of little girls. The sugar-and-spice gets the A's and can do physical things like rope-jumping much better. So the boys retire from unfair competition.

The women's libbers seem to think that the "boys clubs" have made a mess of history and that society should be restructured to eliminate the differences in sexual roles.

But isn't there grave danger in tampering radically with a pattern that has existed in all known human societies? Wouldn't it be better to restructure the ideals and functions of many of the masculine societies? Doesn't the human male have a deep need to walk tall in comradeship with his peers?

In church a men and boys choir can add much to the beauty and meaning of worship. Too often a mixed choir gets the nickname of "the war department."

DOES PRAYER help in sport? Clela Wanamaker, champion woman archer of North America, is sure it does. She tells the story in the Billy Graham magazine Decision.

She describes herself as a lifelong but rather lukewarm Christian who had gained more meaningful understanding through Bible study.

After many victories her archery went into a dreadful slump. She always smoked compulsively during tournaments, but with prayer she broke the habit. Her scores went up and up.

She now shoots for the greater glory of God. Every bending of the bow is an act of prayer. "I call fingers release the arrow. Twang! Once in competition I remember turning my head to see if Jesus was at my right shoulder."

A cynic might say what she did was quit smoking, thereby improving her muscular tone.

But what is prayer? Doesn't every athlete say a kind of prayer at the instant of decision? But most of them don't think of that still moment of concentrated determination as an act of worship.

THE RESPONSE to last week's quiz on Christianity was gratifying. There was a fine cross section of the denominations represented. Replies came from all ages. Many added comments. An agnostic devoted four single-spaced pages to his views.

Results of the quiz will be discussed at length next week.

One comment can be made now. The whole agreement of the various denominations on doctrine was surprising. A majority of Christians, for example, believe in the Last Judgment.

RELIGION

HOW CAN a singing, swinging, 72-year-old peacenik find happiness and fulfillment as "rabbi in residence" in a Methodist church?

It's easy, says Rabbi L. Feinberg, as long as the church is unconventional, doesn't mention Christ in its liturgy and is concerned with people — not theology.

That, he said, is the philosophy behind San Francisco's Glide Memorial Methodist Church. Four months ago the pastor, the Rev. Cecil Williams, installed Feinberg with the help of actor Sammy Davis Jr.

The rabbi carries a cane given to him by Ho Chi Minh during a visit to North Viet Nam.

The rabbi has delivered several sermons — "revolutionary messages" — to the flock of hippies, homosexuals, religious and social dropouts who attend the church. He says his work is in the tradition of the Hebrew prophets who sought justice for the oppressed, the downtrodden, the marginal people.

Very interesting — but can a church without Christ be Methodist?

GOINGS ON

The first annual Mass for all alumni of St. Anthony's High School will be held Sunday, 1:30 p.m. in St. Anthony's Church. The alumni will visit the school and grounds afterwards.

"Love Song," a Christian rock musical, will be presented at Excelsior High School, Alondra and Pioneer boulevards, Norwalk, at 7:30 p.m. by singers from Calvary Chapel, Costa Mesa.

Gordon Woodburn, baritone, and Gene Roberson, organist, will present a sacred concert at the First Baptist Church of Lakewood Sunday at 6 p.m. Roberson will demonstrate the new Allen Computer organ.

The Farr Family will present a sacred concert at the First Church of the Brethren, 3332 Magnolia Ave., Sunday, 11 a.m. The Farr Family — mother, father and six children — have sung 800 concerts in 41 states.

The Singing Tones and other singers will be heard at the Friendship Baptist Church, Lime Avenue and Ninth Street, Sunday, 7:30 p.m.

Calvary Faith Tabernacle, 118 N. Emily, Anaheim, will conduct a series of charismatic meetings on Tuesdays starting next Tuesday at 10 a.m. under the direction of Evangelist Dina Patton.

Gospel cure for alienation

'Freeway to Salvation, California style'

Duane Day quits pulpit

THE REV. WILLIAM MIEDEMA... El Dorado Park Church

By MARK CLUTTER

El Dorado Park Community Church could be called "the Freeway to Salvation, California Style."

The church has a single dynamic purpose. It seeks to draw the alienated — their name is almost Everyman in Southern California — to the strong, undiluted, Calvinist-oriented Gospel of Jesus Christ.

El Dorado Church uses all the modern and traditional ecclesiastical techniques to achieve its mission. It is frankly and proudly in "showbiz." The dignified sanctuary is surrounded by the singing fountains which at night services dance in colored lights to sacred music.

The casual sight-seer who passes the church at 3655 Norwalk Blvd. may be puzzled by the wraith-like white puffs that dot the spacious lawn. They are plastic bags which protect the drive-in theater sound devices. El Dorado is a drive-in church.

The Rev. William Miedema, pastor and founder, explained the philosophy and function of a drive-in church.

"Ideally we want to get people out of their cars and into the sanctuary," he said. "It is more friendly and meaningful inside. But many people have compelling reasons for staying in their cars." Alienation is high on the list of reasons why people don't want to enter the sanctuary. "They are afraid to be with people," Miedema said. "They don't feel under pressure when they are alone in their cars."

Many feel they are improperly dressed. They may have stopped at church en route to the beach or some other outing. "There were two girls who came in swimsuits for many Sundays. They now wear dresses and sing in the choir," he said. Some handicapped people literally can't walk into the church.

Many of the hard-of-hearing can understand the electronic sounds more clearly.

Many families with young children stay in cars to avoid disturbing others.

El Dorado Church, affiliated with the Reformed Church in America, has been well-publicized in the denomination, and many tourists visit it during the summer.

The drive-in has created a different kind of congregation. In most churches most of the people in the pews are members. On some Sundays at El Dorado the visitors will outnumber the members. There are approximately 1,000 members but total attendance at the three services is about 2,000.

Although it is called a community church its "parish" is the Southland. There are members as far away as Inglewood and Mission Viejo. Many visitors come from greater distances.

The church is one of the showplaces of the Long Beach area. A tall white tower over a fountain is topped with a cross. The sanctuary, which can seat 1,400 in its upholstered pews, has unadorned beauty which inspires reverence. The magnificent cross of laminated olive wood was the work of a famous Israeli craftsman. Some of the trees that furnished the wood were living on the Mount of Olives when Jesus walked there.

The Communion Table of heavy walnut is carved in patterns in vogue two or three hundred years ago. The pulpit is so arranged that the preacher can talk directly to the people in the sanctuary and those in the cars. It is shielded by a glass door that slides open.

The church held its first meeting in the Los Altos Drive-In Theater in 1958. It continued to meet there until the present land was obtained in 1965. The sanctuary was built in 1970. Plans call for further building. The entire church plant represents an investment of $1.5 million. The architect is Benno Fischer, A.I.D., the contractor Clark Esser.

"The key to any church is the laymen, not the staff," Miedema said. "We have strong, dedicated laymen. Among them are people who give more than the tithe, more than a tenth of their income. People here are so eager to do things."

The church attacks the problem of alienation in many ways. One of the most successful is the development of small Bible discussion groups which meet in homes. The program is under the direction of the Rev. Kenneth Leestra, minister of lay development.

"There are a fantastic number of lonely people in California," Miedema said. "In these groups people learn to understand themselves and each other better. They learn they are not alone, that other people have problems too."

Young people and children have flourishing programs. There is the Glory Surf and Transportation Co. which takes them to the beach. There is a Boy Scout troop. The Joyful Noise Singers recently toured in Arizona with a musical called "Love." Marv Fogleman is the children's director and Jerry Martin is the youth director.

Music receives heavy emphasis. There are three children's choirs, a youth choir and an adult choir.

Persons yearning for a soft, easy, watered-down religion are not going to find a church home at El Dorado.

"We have a strong Bible emphasis with a Calvinistic interpretation," Miedema said. "We are not fundamentalist in the usual sense of the word. Rather, we hold to the fundamentals. We believe in the Apostles Creed, the Nicene Creed and the Heidelberg Catechism."

"We also believe in scholarship. A minister in the Reformed Church must have four years of college and three years of seminary."

Miedema, from Grand Rapids, Mich., graduated from Hope College at Holland, Mich., and from Western Theological Seminary. He was a pastor in Traverse City, Mich. for three and a half years before coming here.

The Reformed Church is the oldest denomination with a continuous ministry in the United States. It was founded in New Amsterdam. That church is now Marble Collegiate, of which Norman Vincent Peale is pastor.

The denomination, formerly called the Dutch Reformed, still has a Dutch accent.

"I'm a Dutchman myself," Miedema said, "and I'm glad we have some Dutchmen here. Our church used to be staid and stodgy, but we are being seasoned by the Americans. You get a Dutchman fired up and you have a great worker. But he has to be sold — and he isn't easy to sell."

This article has not mentioned all the programs of this dynamic church. Its work in television with an enlarged program planned for the future deserves a full article in itself. There is an extensive counseling program called the ministry of compassion. It is conducted by Mrs. Adele Lawry and Dr. Lester Lee of the Christian Counseling Center, Long Beach.

The church contributes to ten missionaries. It will soon play host to 35 little boys from Japan. The trip was arranged by the mission there. Recently it was host to boys and girls from an orphanage in Tijuana.

The contemporary trend is toward more logical thinking on the part of Christians, Miedema believes. "A preacher used to play on emotions. He must still do that to an extent, but people today listen to logic. A preacher has to say something. He's got to be with people where they live."

Miedema gives an impression of quiet strength and happiness. He has a wife, Dorothy, and two daughters, Deborah, 19, and Lucinda, 17 — beautiful ladies, judging by the photos on his desk.

The Rev. Dr. Duane L. Day has resigned as senior minister of First Congregational Church. It was announced last weekend by Jack Crippen, moderator, and the church's cabinet.

The reason for the resignation was physical exhaustion. Dr. Day plans a period of vacation and rest. A farewell reception will be held at a later date.

Dr. Day, 43, came to the church in 1968. Much has been accomplished during his ministry. A children's creative center was established. The summer day camp and Saturday program were initiated. Plymouth West, a retirement home, was planned and building begun. The church building was opened on a continuing basis to such organizations as Parents Anonymous and Meals on Wheels. Church organization was restructured.

"My own plans are, as yet, undecided. I would hope to announce those plans soon," Dr. Day said.

Win Gould, associate minister, will serve as responsible minister through August. Dr. Stuart Anderson, a past minister, will serve as interim senior minister beginning Sept. 1 until a permanent appointment can be made.

BIBLE WEEK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Paul W. McCracken, has been named national chairman for the 32nd annual interfaith National Bible Week, which will be observed Nov. 19-26. McCracken, who has served as an adviser to Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon, succeeds Arthur J. Goldberg, 1971 chairman.

Creativity needed to enjoy 'toys'

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

A friend told of an experience he and his wife had while browsing in an antique "barn" in upstate New York with their small daughter, age 4. Filled with all sorts of antique odds and ends, one corner was of particular interest to the little tot.

She stood looking up at some old toys lined along two shelves. There were a jack-in-the-box, some very old dilapidated trains, a sad-looking teddy bear who had lost most of his stuffing, and an assortment of old dolls and doll furniture.

Fascinated with one of the dolls, the little girl asked if she could hold it. The proprietor good naturedly took it down and handed her the big doll in the pretty old-fashioned dress. The little girl examined it carefully as she held it in her arms.

Then she gently placed the old-fashioned doll into a highchair. Forty years before some other little girl had probably done the same thing, only then the doll didn't have a cracked face or a musty dress. But it still was a very exquisite doll; they don't even make them like that anymore!

Suddenly the little girl lost interest. As the doll of yesteryear draped over the highchair, she walked away bored. "She doesn't do anything, Daddy!" she pouted.

As the father told me about the incident, he mused, "It's sad in a way. Children of today expect toys to do things for them. How can they put much of themselves into creative play when everything is made to entertain them?"

Reflecting on this I couldn't help but think about it in broader terms. Life is like that too. If we don't put much of ourselves into it and just expect to be entertained, in the long run, we won't get much out of it. Just like a wind-up toy! When the battery wears out, the toy can just sit there along with the unimaginative child who is waiting to be entertained, or with a little creative thinking, the child can make it go without the battery.

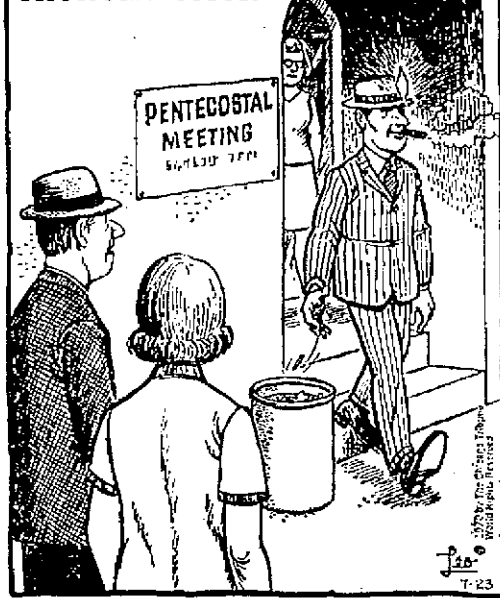

Let me tell you about a woman who never had anything but artificial flowers in the house. Why? They didn't need water, had no aphids, and they never wilted. She didn't want to be bothered with the real ones.

One day her husband decided to plant a rose bush in their little garden. He pruned it, watered it, and fed it with garden food faithfully. Finally the day came when he brought the first bloom into the house. Reluctantly the wife took the artificial flowers from the vase and replaced them with the single rosebud.

In the days that followed, she watched the rose unfold. As she examined the red velvet petals more closely, she couldn't help but sniff its fragrant perfume. A poignant truth overwhelmed her. This was something alive and growing. Yes, it would die, but the entire cycle was wondrous indeed! And the joy that rose afforded could never be replaced by an artificial flower.

That which we must care for and protect means the most to us — a child, an animal, even a fragrant red rose in a small vase. Wonder if that isn't what life is all about. The more you put of yourself into it, the more satisfying and real life will be.

Lutherans Mormons to ordain name new K.S. Hahn president

Kenneth S. Hahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin J. Hahn, 2862 Josie Ave., will be ordained into the holy ministry by the Rev. Edward H. Schroeder, vice president of the Southern California District of The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, in First Lutheran Church, 905 Atlantic Ave., at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Candidate Hahn, a recent graduate of Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, is the first member of First Lutheran Church in its long history to enter the preaching ministry, so this is a big day for First Lutheran. Following his ordination the congregation will honor Ken with a reception in the parish hall.

The Rev. Mr. Hahn will preach at both services in First Lutheran Church on the following Sunday, and then will go to Chicago where he will be installed in a dual ministry in the 900-member Grace Lutheran Church, 28th and Karlov.

ANAHEIM—LeRoy Layton, Chandler, Arizona, was named president of the California South Mission of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints July 11, 1972. The area which this Mission covers include Orange, San Diego, and parts of Los Angeles and San Bernardino Counties. Headquarters for the California South Mission is 710 North Euclid Avenue, Suite 110, Anaheim.

The new president, who will serve a term of three years, succeeds Marion Coleman, Boise, Idaho. The new position is one of the highest honors within the Mormon Church. Like a majority of offices within the LDS church, the new president will serve without pay, as did his predecessor.

President Layton was serving as patriarch to the Temple University Stake prior to coming to Orange County. He served with the British Mission in 1939, until the missionaries returned to the U.S. due to World II, completing his mission in Western States Mission. He attended the University of Arizona.

Chiang muzzles Presbyterians on Taiwan

World Vision magazine says that the Nationalist Chinese government refused to permit a recent general assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Taiwan to discuss a controversial statement on the future of the island made by the denomination last year.

Says World Vision, an evangelical missionary group's publication: "The document declared that the 200,000 Presbyterians on Taiwan do not want to become part of the People's Republic of China, and also asked for reform in the administration of President Chiang Kai-shek."

THE SOUND OF YOUTH

Young Mormons strike poses on the sculpture of timbers at Long Beach State University. They are members of the Sound of Youth, a performing group sponsored by the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-Day Saints, Long Beach East Stake. They are directed by Jim and Jann Durdan. "The Sound of Youth is available for clubs, conventions, church activities and the like. Their programs consist of folk, pop, religious and patriotic songs.

'Love works' Church without Offertory

"Christian love — it works!"

The speaker, E. R. Brandt, has the heroic task of establishing the suitable environment for the manifestation of Christian love by 17,000 persons in Long Beach this weekend. He is manager of the mammoth Jehovah's Witnesses convention at the Arena, which opened Thursday and continues through Sunday afternoon. It is one of three conventions in progress in Los Angeles County. One is in Inglewood, the other in the Los Angeles Sports Arena. Attendance totals 55,000 Jehovah's Witnesses.

"Planning for 17,000 visitors was quite a job," Brandt said. "We reserved most of the hotel and motel rooms in Long Beach. Many will commute from other towns. At least 1,000, perhaps 2,000 will be guests in the homes of Witnesses. The convention has a full agenda of sermons, music and Bible drama. Visitors at the convention and all other meetings are always welcome," Brandt said.

The visitor will discover something unusual for a religious assembly. There are no collection plates. If the spirit moves him, he can find a contribution box, but no one will ask him for money.

In fact, Jehovah's Witnesses do not believe in fund-raising. "My wife and I have been traveling for Jehovah's Witnesses for 19 years," Brandt said. "I get $5 a month expense money, but we have never known any want."

The Witnesses seek to live like the earliest Christians of the Acts of the Apostles, which means that through love for each other they provide what is necessary. "On an individual level it works like this," Brandt said. "A young man wanted to attend a ministerial school. Shortly before he was to leave his house burned down. A number of congregations urged him to go, assuring him his family would be taken care of. When he returned home he was surprised to find he had a new house better than the one he had lost."

All immersed members are considered ministers. While they do have their Kingdom Halls, most of the ministry is from door to door. "We are growing rapidly," Brandt said. "We have added 150,000 per year for the last four years."

Witnesses emphasize family life and there is a family feeling in their meetings. "It sounds like boasting but it is true. Because of the spirit of love our young people are the beautiful people. There is some adolescent rebellion, but not much. "We have had some success with hippies and other such young people. The Jesus freaks are usually hard to reach. They are caught up in emotionalism; while our appeal is Bible education. We seek to show young people how they can direct their lives by the Bible."

This is not the largest Witness convention here. The one in 1964 attracted more than 24,000.

The final act of the convention will be the cleaning job. "It's always our first concern," Brandt said, "to leave the place in better condition than when we moved in."

After most large meetings an auditorium looks like a disaster area. — Mark Clutter

FROM THE PULPIT

Dr. Frank Collins

Great interest centers today around prophecy, the return of the Jews to Palestine, apostasy in many churches, the liberal and sometimes unbelievable programs of the N.C.C. and other developments that give great indication that these are the Last Days spoken of in Scripture.

Certain Apostates are becoming more open in their denials of the Faith. Infidelity no longer is confined to a few men in some liberal university. It is the main discourse of many a Sunday sermon in Sunday morning church.

Some years ago people developed a kind of philosophy, trying to be charitable, that said it didn't matter what kind of church one attended, as long as they attended church. No intelligent, informed person who knows anything about the Bible would make that statement today. It does make a difference what you are taught and what the Preacher preaches. The Gospel of Christ alone can save a sinner from his sins, and the Grace of God alone is sufficient for our lives.

Bible truths are essential to all children. They have a right to know what God has done for them in Christ.

If you do not attend a Bible believing, Bible centered, evangelical church, "Come to Calvary! Calvary is for you!"

But won't out-Agnew Agnew

Eagleton to push urban issues, law and order

By STEVE GERSTEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Thomas Eagleton said Friday he will emphasize law and order and urban problems as the Democratic vice presidential candidate this fall, but vowed he would not "out-Agnew Agnew" no matter how rough the campaign gets.

Sitting in his shirt sleeves behind a cluttered desk, the 42-year-old Missouri lawmaker said in an interview that his views vary in both "substance and tone" from those of Vice President Agnew.

"Agnew's pitch is bombastic, frightening, often times divisive," Eagleton said. "From my point of view, rational and meaningful commentary can be made without resorting to inflammatory rhetoric."

"I'll not try to out-Agnew Agnew, no sir," he added, in response to a question.

Handpicked by George McGovern to round out the Democratic ticket, Eagleton said he would concentrate on law and order and the urban crisis as issues; conceded he and McGovern differ on some major points; disclosed he will campaign heaviest in the south and states and cities with smaller populations; and admitted he has to overcome being "Tom, who?"

Eagleton predicted two factors could be decisive in the election — the issue of credibility and the registration of the young and black.

Leaning back in his chair, Eagleton freely acknowledged that he and McGovern differ on some issues, but added "this is healthy" and would add to the credibility of the ticket.

"Tom, Who?"

As an example, Eagleton cited his opposition to an all-volunteer Army during wartime. "The risk of death must be borne equally across the board, rich or poor, black and white," he said.

Eagleton also said he supported development of the multipurpose F15 jet fighter which McGovern wants cut out of the military budget. (McDonnell Douglas headquarters in Eagleton's home of St. Louis, would build the plane.)

Pragmatically, Eagleton said if he and McGovern have a showdown on an issue, "he wins. He's No. 1, I'm only No. 2."

EAGLETON said McGovern has asked him in the campaign "to emphasize issues relating to law and order, issues relating to urban problems."

His credentials in the field include being a former district attorney and state attorney general and a native of St. Louis which he said has all the problems of New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, or any large city.

Eagleton will also concentrate on the problems of the aged and the environment where he has acquired expertise since coming to the senate in 1969.

Much of the campaign strategy will be worked out Tuesday when McGovern gathers his high command, including Eagleton, at Sylvan Lake, S.D.

Eagleton said he expected McGovern to concentrate on the populous, large electoral vote states while "I'll go on to states and cities of lesser population."

"My guess would be that between the two of us we will visit almost all of the 50 states," Eagleton said.

MOVING to another question, Eagleton said he knew McGovern "favorably, but casually" before being picked for the No. 2 spot.

He said the longest conversation the two had was in the Senate steam bath which lasted between forty-five minutes and an hour.

"I know I'm 'Tom who,' Eagleton said, facing up to his problem of becoming well known nationally.

In 1968 the vice presidential candidates were known as "Ed (Muskie) who and Spiro (Agnew) who" and they became well-known, Eagleton noted.

A phone call from an assistant to Jerry Wurf, leader of the state and local government employees, interrupted the conversation.

Although labor is critical to the Democrats, Eagleton had to beg off a night meeting.

"I've got to take my boy to a movie," Eagleton advised. "He's going away to camp and I promised him."

CAMPAIGN PLANS

me ahead if the primaries were any indication."

McGovern has set a session today at his Sylvan Lake, S.D., retreat in the Black Hills to plan with his aides and political advisers from all segments of society the type of campaign he will wage against Nixon.

Gary Hart, McGovern's campaign director, said most of the strategy has been decided.

"It's just a matter of sitting around a table and working it all out," Hart said.

Accompanying McGovern back to South Dakota was Walter Fauntroy, the District of Columbia's representative in Congress who helped deliver the endorsement of black leaders in McGovern's successful bid for the nomination. Gov. Richard Klep of South Dakota also was aboard his plane.

Jean Westwood, new director of the Democratic National Committee who talked strategy over dinner with McGovern Thursday evening, will be among those attending the today's session. Other party leaders from all parts of the country also were invited.

As the entourage prepared to leave Washington's National Airport, McGovern, in shirt sleeves, and his wife, Eleanor, stood at the top of the plane's ramp waiting while an aide tried unsuccessfully to get their dog Atticus to climb the stairs.

McGovern finally walked down, put his arm around the big black Newfoundland, knelt and whispered in his ear. He stood up, walked back up the stairs and the dog followed.

When McGovern arrived at the airport, Harold Miller, a candidate for Congress in suburban Virginia, met him and handed him a check for $21 for his campaign, asking McGovern's support in return. McGovern wished him luck.

McGovern then asked Miller who his competition was and when Miller answered that it was Rep. Joel Broyhill, a conservative Republican, McGovern answered, "You have my double blessing."

ECONOMY

Clothing prices declined three-tenths of one per cent. "Retail prices of poultry, beef and pork rose sharply in June after declining for several months," the bureau said in reporting a rise of 1.3 per cent. Fruits and vegetables climbed 2.7 per cent, it said.

There were also increases for used cars, homes, mortgage interest rates, tobacco, textile house furnishings, toilet goods and reading materials.

Gasoline prices, alcoholic beverages and furniture prices declined. Prices of new cars also dropped although not as much as usual, the report said.

Increases for services included home repairs, telephone, electricity, transit, bus and taxi fares.

Prices of residential gas declined, the report added.

Few rich escape taxes, solons told

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undersecretary of the Treasury Edwin S. Cohen told Congress Friday that substantially all of the rich are paying huge amounts of federal income tax despite reports to the contrary.

He urged the Senate-House Economic Committee not to be distracted by the few high income individuals who manage to escape taxes and bring a shower of "political rhetoric" in an election year. The committee is considering tax subsidies and tax reform.

It is true, Cohen testified, that three of 624 individuals with adjusted gross income of more than $1 million in 1970 paid no tax.

BUT THE other 621 paid an average tax of $985,000 for a total of $612 million representing a tax of 46.4 per cent on gross and 65.3 per cent of net taxable income.

Cohen defended the federal income tax system as "the most efficient revenue device in the history of the world."

Although further reform may well be in order, he said, Congress should proceed "with calm analysis and thoughtful judgment" in considering the complex issues involved in so-called "tax subsidies."

COHEN SAID no tax was reported for 1970 by 22 of 2,393 individuals with adjusted gross income over $500,000; 112 of 15,323 with income over $200,000; 394 of 77,893 with income over 100,000 and 1,338 of 429,568 with income over $50,000.

Among those above

$200,000 income, he said, 15,211 persons paid an average tax of $177,161 for a total of $2.7 billion.

"We should be slow to condemn a federal income tax system that produces by voluntary assessment these huge amounts of tax on high adjusted gross income groups merely because a fraction of one per cent of the cases report no tax due," he said.

In an analysis of the 112 individuals in the above $200,000 income group who paid no taxes, Cohen said: some paid high taxes abroad which are credited against U. S. tax; some paid state income taxes for 1969 in amounts exceeding 1970 earnings; many had high deductions for interest paid, and for business expenses.

COHEN suggested that tax definitions be changed to deduct interests and business expense in computing "adjusted gross income" instead of treating these items as personal deductions.

Cohen denied that tax law changes since January 1969 have favored corporations against individuals.

For the four calendar years 1969-1972, he said, the changes have increased corporate income taxes an aggregate of $4.9 billion and have decreased individual income taxes an aggregate of $18.9 billion.

Cohen said President Nixon has promised to submit to Congress next year, recommendations for further tax reform and that the Treasury is making a thorough review of the tax law in preparation for this legislation.

Coffee price hiked by General Foods

NEW YORK (AP) — General Foods Corp. said Friday it was boosting the prices of its Maxwell House Division coffee products an average of seven cents a pound for ground coffee and a penny an ounce for instant products.

There was no immediate comment from major retailers, who had declined to predict what they would do if roasters such as General Foods boosted wholesale prices following a damaging frost in Brazil earlier this summer.

General Foods, which sells coffee products under the brand names of Maxwell House, Sanka, Yuban and Maxima, said green coffee prices had gone up more than eight cents a pound since the Brazilian frost.

It said it had notified the Price Commission of its plans to boost prices this coming Monday, but said commission approval was not needed because the company was merely passing along increases in raw material prices.

General Foods was the first American roaster to announce increases related to the frost in Brazil, which produces a third of the coffee imported to this country.

The frost took place in July in the state of Parana, which alone accounts for 30 to 50 per cent of Brazilian coffee sent to the United States.

Immediately after the frost, the Brazilian Coffee Institute clamped a lid on exports, estimating that as much as 40 to 50 per cent of the state's crop of next year would be lost.

CIA HEROIN CHARGE

such allegations was a departure from the usual "low profile" of the agency, but they insisted that there was no evidence linking the CIA to the drug traffic in Southeast Asia.

One well-informed government official responsible for monitoring the illegal flow of narcotics complained in an interview that many of McCoy's charges "are out of date." "Go back three or four years," he said, "and no one was concerned about this. It wasn't until our own troops started to get addicted, until 1968 or '69, that anyone was aware" of the narcotic problems in Southeast Asia.

THIS official said that in the eyes of the CIA, the charges were "unfair." He said of the CIA, "They think they're taking the heat for being unaware and not doing anything about something that was going on two or three years ago." He accused McCoy of making "blanket charges that could be applied to all government officials."

During two congressional appearances last month, McCoy testified that his accusations were based on more than 250 interviews, some of them with past and present officials of the CIA. He said that top-level South Vietnamese officials including President Nguyen Van Thieu and Premier Tran Van Kheim were specifically involved.

Robert H. Steele, R-Conn., said during a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee hearing that the United States government possessed "hard intelligence" linking a number of high-ranking Southeast Asian officials, including Maj. Gen. Ngo Dzu, then commander of the South Vietnamese II Corps, with involvement in the narcotics trade. Steele's accusations were denied and mostly ignored.

McCoy also alleged that Corsican and American syndicate gangsters had become involved in the narcotics trade. He said that such information was known to the CIA. In a chapter of his book published in this month's Harper's magazine, McCoy further charged that in 1967 the infamous "Golden Triangle"—an opium-producing area embracing parts of northeastern Burma, northern Thailand and northern Laos — was producing about 1,000 tons of raw opium annually, then about 70 per cent of the world's supply.

THE BULK of McCoy's accusations — both in the magazine and hearings — failed to gain much national attention. Nonetheless, the CIA began its unusual public defense after a Washington Star reporter cited some of McCoy's allegations in a column.

Two letters were sent to the newspaper for publication. One was signed by W. E. Colby, the executive director of the CIA, and the other by Paul V. Velte Jr., a Washington-based official with Air America, a charter airline that flies missions for the CIA in Southeast Asia. Both categorically denied the allegations linking CIA personnel to any knowledge of, or activity in, the drug traffic.

A similar letter of disavowal, signed by Colby, was sent for publication to the publisher of Harper's magazine within the last week. Robert Schnayerson, the magazine's editor, said that the letter would be published as soon as possible.

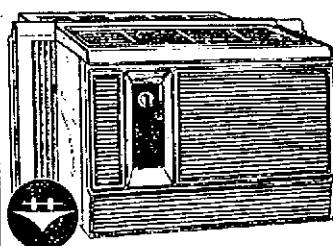

THE CIA began its approach to Harper & Row in early June, apparently after learning of McCoy's appearance before the Senate subcommittee. Cord Meyer Jr., described as a senior agency official, met with officials of the publishing concern and informally asked for a copy of the manuscript for review prior to publication.

On July 5, a formal letter making the request, signed by Lawrence R. Houston, general counsel of the CIA was sent to Harper & Row.

Houston's request was not based on national security, but on the thesis that "allegations concerning involvement of the U.S. government (in drug traffic) or the participation of American citizens should be made only if based on hard evidence."

A copy of the letter was made available to the New York Times.

M'Govern polling less than Humphrey vs. Nixon in '68

Combined News Services

PRINCETON, N.J. — A Gallup poll released Friday showed Sen. George McGovern trailing President Nixon by a wider margin than Hubert H. Humphrey did early in the 1968 presidential campaign.

The poll, taken immediately after the Democratic Convention, showed that 46 per cent of those interviewed favored Nixon, 32 per cent preferred McGovern, and 18 per cent expressed support for a third party run by Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama.

If Wallace does not run, 56 per cent of those polled said they would support Nixon, while 37 per cent would support McGovern.

Four years ago, shortly after the Democratic Convention in Chicago, a Gallup poll showed Nixon with 43 per cent, Vice President Humphrey with 31 per cent and Wallace with 19 per cent.

In the 1968 general election, Humphrey finished only one percentage point behind Nixon in the popular vote, while Wallace drew 13 per cent.

Gallup interviewed 1,149 registered voters in the current poll.

In another poll, by Sindlinger and Co., 1,890 persons were asked their personal choice of either the President or the South Dakota senator. The results were: Nixon 50.2 per cent; McGovern, 27.1 per cent; no opinion, undecided or refused, 22.7 per cent.

But the percentages of the entire group who actually would vote were: To vote, 55.7 per cent; not to vote, 28.4 per cent and 15.9 per cent were undecided, had no opinion, refused or did not know.

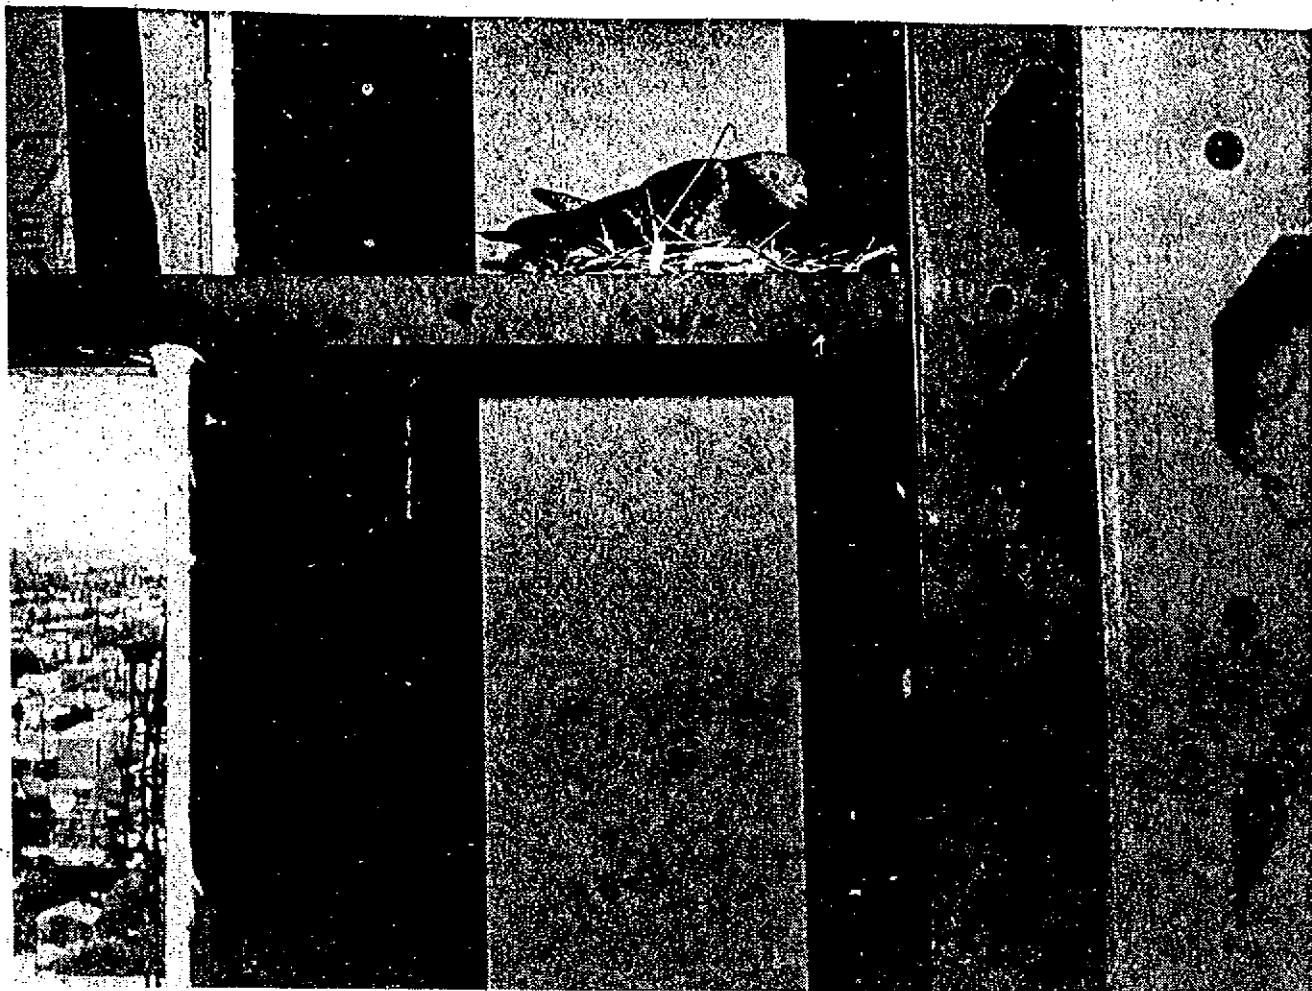

However, the Swarthmore, Pa., based polling firm found that of those who said they would vote, McGovern received 44.1 per cent, while Nixon led with 53.0 per cent and 2.9 per cent were undecided, refused or had no opinion.

Albert E. Sindlinger, head of the poll, said the higher percentage vote for Nixon amongst the general populace was based on "dissident Democrats who are not going to vote at all."

He said, "The anti-McGovern Democrats are all going to sit on their hands."

Time's running out for high-rise pigeon family

"Charley," as workmen call him, nervously watches construction progress on the nearly completed, 10-story Bauer Professional Building on Atlantic Avenue and 11th Street. The work is threatening the maternity ward he and his mate improvised of wire and bits of dry wall on a top-story girder. The anxious pigeons take turns protecting their hatching eggs while keeping an eye on building progress. If it looks like the workmen are going to win the race, the birds can always move to St. Mary's Hospital next door where, we understand, there are some people experienced in such matters.

City at impasse with Western

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Negotiations with Western Airlines over flight limitations are stalemated, City Manager John R. Mansell said Friday, and the city will terminate the company's use of Long Beach Airport terminal facilities, effective Aug. 31.

Mansell said Western officials refuse to accept city proposals to prohibit flights at Long Beach Airport between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m., and to limit them to six daily Monday through Thursday and eight daily Friday through Sunday, and holidays.

Western operations at the local field are within the proposed city flight limitations, but company officials said they are "unilaterally opposed" to making such restrictions part of any lease as a matter of principle.

"We value our city's long association with Western Airlines, and we regret that it is apparently about to end," Mansell said. "However, we can see no way to avoid such termination in view of the company's adamant position on the question of lease restrictions."

WESTERN'S LEASE at the terminal expired June 30, but the City Council, on Mansell's recommendation, extended it for one month to try and work out an agreement on the curfew and flight limitations.

In response to reports that Western would petition the Civil Aeronautics Board in the matter, Mansell said he trusts the CAB will appreciate that the city must "take into account considerations of broad community import which overshadow the more limited question of adequacy of airline service."

"If the federal regulatory agency is not willing to recognize a city's right to exercise some degree of control over its airport users for noise abatement purposes," Mansell declared, "then the federal government should assume responsibility for damages arising out of any lawsuits involving use of the airport beyond that desired by the city."

Mansell said the question of whether an airport sponsor has a right to exercise control over its airport operations is one affecting other governmental jurisdictions, and suggested such agencies join in an effort to define local rights in this area.

He said he will ask councilmen Tuesday to authorize his office to seek the support of other governmental entities in this effort, "including whatever joint legal measures might prove necessary to validate that position."

MANSSELL SAID city officials met last Tuesday with officials of Western Airlines, and again informed the company that any new lease would have to include terms similar to those in the lease with Pacific Southwest Airlines.

Gerald P. O'Grady, senior vice president-legal and secretary for Western, conceded that the proposed restrictions would not be a problem to the company under its present operation.

Western already is informally abiding by the curfew, and has no plans to increase the present number of flights, O'Grady said.

He said the company believes it could not enter into such a lease under its certificate from the CAB, and further that such a lease would set a precedent relative to Western leases at other airports.

O'Grady told city officials Western will consider petitioning the CAB for authority to suspend airline service at Long Beach.

"The question of possible future litigation over this matter was implied, but not amplified," Mansell said.

141-unit condominium in Los Cerritos OK'd

A 141-unit condominium apartment development on 7.8 acres between Country Club Drive and San Diego Freeway at the southwest corner of the Los Cerritos residential area has been approved by the Long Beach Planning Commission.

Commissioners approved a special permit for the Carlsberg Construction Co. to build the apartments in the R-2 residential zone.

THE CASE first came to commission on July 6, but was continued to give the developer time to revise the plans in accordance with suggestions by the city planning staff.

Plans approved provide for increased floor space in the various units, and also a boost in off-street parking from 299 to 324 spaces.

Architect Gared N. Smith of Newport Beach, who designed the project, told commissioners the number of units proposed on the 7.8 acres are within the density permitted for that amount of property under R-2 zoning.

"We intend to do a quality project, architecturally and landscape-wise," Smith said.

Thieves get clothes, TV and stereo gear

Burglars entered the apartment of Steven R. Lemler of 1440 Elm Ave. and took a television set, stereo equipment and clothing valued at a total of $335. Long Beach police reported Friday.

CARL MOOERS assistant city planning director, said the staff believes that the proposed development is preferable to a normal R-2 subdivision for the property.

There was no opposition to the project voiced at the hearing, and Charles P. Day, 3730 Country Club Drive, submitted a letter signed by 30 persons in the area, urging the commission to approve the project.

"I think this will be an asset to the city and an asset to the area," said Commissioner Arnold Berg, who moved to grant the permit.

Burglary, sex suspect committed

Randy A. Edwards, 18, accused of a series of burglaries and sexual attacks at St. Mary's Hospital and nearby nursing homes, was committed to a state hospital Friday for an indeterminate term as a mentally disordered sex offender.

The defendant was committed by Long Beach Superior Court Judge Elsworth M. Beam before whom he pleaded guilty June 5 to one charge of burglary.

Judge Beam suspended further criminal proceedings in the case, including disposition of additional charges of attempted burglary and sex perversion, until Edwards, of 1215 Lewis Ave., is returned to court by the State Department of Mental Hygiene.

2 DAYS TO BUY QUEEN'S GEAR

If you couldn't fight your way through the crowd to buy a piece of the Queen Friday, the sale of Queen Mary furniture and other shipboard memorabilia will continue today and Sunday.

The sale, at the city's central warehouse at 1643 San Francisco Ave., will continue from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on both days — or at least until the merchandise runs out.

A large crowd turned out for the sale Friday, and some people were so eager to buy that they came to blows.

Two men, swinging from the rafters of the warehouse, struggled over two chairs despite protests from property manager Jesse Aringdale that there was plenty for everyone. "We have 650 chairs going for $7.50 each," he said. "There are 2,012 items for sale — all priced."

Other items offered included bunk bed ladders, piano benches, chests of drawers, bedside night stands, writing desks — and one bidet.

Emperors to return to Ram Shack

Back in 1962, a group of high school students got together to make a little music at the Ram Shack youth club, 2800 Studebaker Road, Long Beach. At that time, they were unknown, but now The Emperors have some hit records to their credit.

The Emperors will return to the Ram Shack this Monday for a special performance.

All Long Beach high school students are invited to the dance, which will run from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. Admission will be 50 cents for Ram Shack members and $1 for guests holding high school identification cards.

Mrs. Todd chairman of planners

Mrs. Malcolm C. Todd, a member of the Long Beach Planning Commission since March, 1967, has been elected chairman of the seven-member advisory body for the 1972-63 fiscal year. Arnold Berg, a commission member for eight years, was named vice chairman.

Mrs. Todd has been vice chairman of the commission for the past two years. Since the former chairman, Donald W. Phillips, was elected to the City Council in June, she has been serving as acting chairman.

SHE WAS director of the Long Beach census in 1970. Prior to her appointment to the Planning Commission, she was a member of the city's Library Book Committee and active in a variety of civic organizations. For eight years, she was president of the Retarded Children's Foundation of Long Beach.

During his eight years on the commission, Berg has twice served as chairman.

Other members of the commission are W. Robert Pierce, Weekford Morgan, Dwight E. Bennett, Joseph T. Brooks Jr. and Walter Desmond.

Car window jimmied

Ross D. Hayes of 1134 Chestnut Ave. told police Friday that while his car was parked in front of his home burglars forced open a window and took a tape deck and a jewelry box valued at a total of $191.

Transit firms' other function

Public transit systems seldom operate at a profit, but they have a "social function" for those who cannot use automobiles, the chief of the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration said Friday in Long Beach.

"There are 52 million Americans who are too old, too young, too poor, or are handicapped, who do not have access to automobiles," said Carlos C. Villareal, administrator of the UMTA.

Villareal commended the Long Beach Public Transportation Co. for its recent action in reducing the fare for senior citizens to 10 cents.

Directors of transit companies, he said, must "take risks if necessary" to see that their systems are serving the public.

Villareal, who is inspecting Southern California transportation systems and facilities, met with Long Beach city and bus company officials and also toured the local company.

He told them that when he was in the Southland a year ago, he decided he should learn more about the actual operation of a bus, so he took the state tests.

"I am a qualified bus operator in the state of California," he said.

Villareal was briefed by Planning Director Ernest Mayer Jr. on Long Beach projects, planned or under way, including the proposed downtown transportation center. He expressed particular interest in the center, saying he believes such facilities are one of the major answers to the urban transportation problem.

He said his administration has been conducting pilot projects on a variety of transportation concepts, including such things as highway lanes exclusively for use by buses, minibuses for serving downtown areas, and new designs in buses.

"The only way we are going to get people out of automobiles and into public transportation is to make it attractive to them," Villareal said.

He said this means good schedules, clean buses and good maintenance.

One possible solution to urban transportation problems that "doesn't take much money, but does take a lot of courage" would be to ban private automobiles from urban areas, the administrator said.

"BUT WE can't do it unless we have a good alternative," he said.

It was the UMTA which approved a $3.1-million grant to the Long Beach Public Transportation Co. for construction of new maintenance and administrative facilities and the acquisition of additional equipment.

Villareal said his administration is pleased to be working with the Long Beach system and its general manager, William F. Farrell. He said Farrell and the local system have shown interest in regional transportation planning, which he called "the real key" to successful transit.

Orange Co. valuations set above state level

When Orange County Assessor Andrew J. Hinshaw hiked the valuations on the almost 700,000 properties in the county, he exceeded the mandatory valuation equalization set by the state.

Properties in Orange County now are assessed at 25.5 per cent of their market value, according to the State Board of Equalization, which requires a 25 per cent valuation.

Last year, county valuations were figured to be 24 per cent of market value.

Hinshaw raised them this fiscal year by 14.8 per cent, pushing the average assessment to 25.5 per cent of net worth.

Orange County ranks now just below Los Angeles and Mono counties, both of which assessed at 25.6 per cent of market value. It ranks "even" with Alameda and San Benito counties, both assessed at 25.5 per cent.

CARLOS C. VILLAREAL (L), administrator of federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration, inspects plans for proposed downtown transportation center with C. E. Scott, chairman of the board of directors of the Long Beach Public Transportation Co.

Need 2 million registrants in state

Victory hopes tied to new Democrats

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Larry Lawrence, southern chairman of the California Democratic party, said Friday that if the party registers "anything over 2,100,000 new Democrats before the November election there is no way Republicans can carry California."

Lawrence told the Third Friday Forum at Lakewood Country Club the prospects are good for registration up to 2.5 million because the party was able to raise 1 million and register 1,416,000 new Democrats in 1971, a nonelection year in a state with a Republican governor.

The mathematics of registration would prevail, he said, even in the face of a 14 per cent better voter turnout by Republicans and an 18 per cent higher loyalty factor among GOP voters.

San Diego County was cited as a bellwether for the state. Democrats there enjoy a 25,000 registration advantage today, up from a 25,000 deficit on Feb. 1, 1971, when Lawrence joined state Democratic Chairman Charles T. Manatt in the party's rebuilding program.

Lawrence, reporting on the Democratic convention in Miami Beach, said delegates worked in an exemplary manner and with dedication.

"These delegates have rejected the big union bosses with the same fervor as they did the big political bosses. They give to Nixon the Teamsters, America's most corrupt union whose last two national presidents have been in prison, whose recent president was released by Nixon after being jailed by Bobby Kennedy, whose pension funds are the biggest source of Mafia racketeer business financing in Las Vegas and elsewhere. They say to Nixon, 'Sleep with dogs and catch fleas.'"

If the "rank amateurs" of 1968 "who became better pros than the pros in 1972 don't pull it off in 1972," Lawrence said, "there is no way possible for them to lose in 1976. This year is the last year of an establishment presidential possibility."

"By 1976, voters over 50 will be outnumbered eight to one by voters under 30. In 1976 this same group (under 30) will outnumber the voters from 30 to 50 by almost three to one, and that is the same ratio they're registering Democratic even in staid old San Diego."

The old Democratic coalition is gone and strangely enough, with it will be the old Republican coalition. "If there was one dominant theme out of Miami.

Lawrence said, it is the belief that Nixon will "overkill" — in hate, in attacks on McGovern's positions and in the extravagant use of money. They beg the Republicans to get bitter, to get mean and to get nasty; they are counting on Nixon and his friends to create the climate of hate that will bring about their disaster and Democratic victory."

THE DAILY INVESTOR

No ombudsman found yet

By CHARLES J. ELIA

Q As you can see from the letter I'm enclosing, I have received useless double-talk from the Securities and Exchange Commission branch office in Utah, where a company whose slaves I owned is located. I need a government agency to investigate the company and advise me of my legal rights. What organization in the country can do this? I cannot afford a lawyer to go to Utah and investigate. How can I get the company to pay for my losses?

A. If you're looking for an ombudsman in the securities industry, forget it. No such thing exists. Whether you think it fair or not, the only person with any chance of helping you is your own hired lawyer. The government has no got to the point yet of providing free legal service on stockholder problems.

I assume from the absence of any other comment from you that the summary of your complaints in the SEC letter is correct, that you ordered your broker to sell this stock without knowing it had had a reverse split of one share for every 10 outstanding, that the broker now is demanding $2,083,000 you owe the account when he corrected the oversell by buying enough shares to cover the error.

Frankly, you have very little to go on here. You claim neither the company nor the broker advised you the stock had been reversed-split but this company is so little known that I suspect it is an intrastate matter and it may have given that Utah's securities commission all the disclosure required by filing notice there of action. It's doubtful the broker can be held liable for not notifying you; he was, after all, executing the order you gave him.

But opinions from me or anyone but your own lawyer on your chances of recovery won't help resolve your problem. There is no way you can get the SEC to provide a lawyer for you, as the SEC has made clear to you.

I would suggest one interim step. File your complaint, setting forth all the details, with the Division of Inquiries and Complaints, New York Stock Exchange, 11 Wall Street, New York, N.Y. Even though you were dealing in an unlisted stock, your quarrel on the account is with a Big Board member firm and the NYSE will look into the complaint. However, judging from what you've told me, I'd caution you against being very optimistic about winning the argument. You really need a lawyer.

Q. In recent months I was a heavy buyer of a young growth company for which management, my broker and independent research groups were predicting large, constant growth. It just came out with a large loss and management's now forecasting losses for the next several quarters. The stock dropped to about 15 per cent of its former value.

I've since found out that a director of the company sold $2 million of stock between the quarter's end and the day earnings were reported. I think it's safe to assume he had inside knowledge. I've considered contacting the Securities and Exchange Commission but wonder if the SEC would support my individual interests. How can I find the right law firm to pursue this?

A. The SEC may not pursue your personal interests in this case but it is always interested in cases where officers or directors may find the proof a little more difficult. The SEC may find using inside information, so you ought to send the SEC whatever evidence you have. In pursuing larger interests the SEC just might be furthering your own.

SEC to issue new stock rules

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Securities and Exchange Commission will issue new rules next week requiring the promoters of new stocks to give the public "the kind of information a banker would ask for if you want to borrow money from him" SEC Chairman William J. Casey said Friday.

competition it is bucking and the "track record" of its management, Casey said.

The tough new disclosure requirements are intended to provide the small investor with "the kind of information about new issues that is now available to the sophisticated investor."

which is designed to serve as an insurance policy rather than a means of communicating the information about a business."

At the peak of a bear market, the commissioner said, there usually is "great splurge" of new untaxed issues.

"The public gets excited about them, bids them up. Then reality sets in and great many go sour — a lot of people lose money," he said. "This is especially damaging to public confidence."

SCHMIDT-ISSERSTEDT

Pauk in Hollywood Bowl debut

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

George Pauk, the young Hungarian-born violinist, made his Hollywood Bowl debut Thursday night, playing the Beethoven Concerto on the second of this week's three programs devoted to music of that composer.

If Pauk's performance of the work was not definitive, it at least established his credentials as a serious musician and resourceful virtuoso. More humored, more noble, and more charismatic readings of this concerto are possible — even preferable — but there can be no faulting the clear and careful way Pauk plays it. He seems to possess the gifts, the technique, and the temperament needed in the career that has been predicted for him, and which he is now fulfilling.

On this occasion, he had the best kind of collaboration from conductor Hans Schmidt-Isserstedt and the Los Angeles Philharmonic, both performing up to that standard each set in the mini-series opening, Tuesday. To be sure, there were some minor accidents in the slow movement, yet this reading was, in its total, remarkable for finesse and solidity.

Similar virtues illuminated the program's outer works, the "Egmont" Overture and the Fifth Symphony. Schmidt-Isserstedt is an unhurried but never plodding leader, one who finds the spacious elements in a piece, then projects those elements with a conviction born of special insights. In all three pieces played Thursday, one heard that conviction set forth.

Still, the Fifth has sounded, at times in our past experience, more compulsive, more vehement, more outgoing, and more schizoid. This time around, it was a bit tame.

Thursday's audience count was, like Tuesday's, proof of the adage that Beethoven sells tickets; 7,913 people attended. For them it was a lucky night in more than the aristocratic performance: only a very few (three, by my count) passing aircraft distracted them from the musical experience.

Free concerts on Queen Mary

The California Express will present free concerts on the Queen Mary's sun-deck Sunday evenings at 7:30, 8:30 and 9:30. The program marks a new policy by the Queen Mary of presenting free concerts on Sunday evenings.

Youths pick good time for fund swim

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — Skip Dershen, Pat McGinnis and Clark Forbes couldn't have picked a better time to set a local continuous swim record.

The boys — stroking away in 50-degree weather — splashed for 24 hours to raise about $200 for a local muscular dystrophy fund campaign. The teenagers swam from noon Thursday to noon Friday in Everett Park pool here.

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Ever have relatives stay with you for a week or two? Sort of disrupts your television viewing, huh?

I mean, not only are you likely to be out of the house more often, showing them the sights of fabulous Southern California, but when you do spend an evening at home you have to be a gentleman and let your visitors take charge of the TV set.

There were two shows that I particularly wanted to see this week, and I didn't get to see either one. The first was "In Search of the Lost World" on Monday night and the second was the premiere of "The David Steinberg Show" on Wednesday night.

Instead of "Lost World" I got the St. Louis Cardinals-Houston Astros baseball game from the Astrodome, and in place of Steinberg I was treated to — of all things — a 1939 movie, "Hell's Kitchen," starring the Dead End Kids and Ronald Reagan.

So help me, it's true. "Hell's Kitchen" is just one of two ancient, black-and-white movies that I got to see on Channel 52 this week. The other, a bit more recent, was "Never Say Goodbye" (1946), starring Errol Flynn and Eleanor Parker.

I also witnessed my second baseball game of the year — the Angels vs. the Red Sox in Boston Tuesday evening.

You want to know something? I rather enjoyed my first two baseball games of the season. If my relatives from Missouri stayed with us much longer, I very easily could become a baseball fan once again. After all, I used to like baseball very much. The trick in not becoming an addict to any sport is to avoid it completely. The more you watch, the more you get hooked.

Want to know something else? Those two old movies weren't too bad.

As the sayings go, there's no accounting for taste — and everything's relative.

IN CASE you hadn't noticed, "The Addams Family" is back on the air. The half-hour comedy series based on Charles Addams' macabre cartoon characters is being shown on Channel 52 at 7:30 p.m. each Saturday. The reruns began last week.

Carolyn Jones, John Astin, Jackie Coogan and Ted Cassidy star in the series.

BOB HOPE will serve as master of ceremonies of a giant "Celebrity Flood Relief Special" tonight, but don't try to tune the show in. The show, originating in Baltimore, will be carried by TV stations in just eight eastern states and the District of Columbia.

Many other showbiz stars will participate in the six-hour show to raise funds for victims of recent floods in the East.

SUNDAY NIGHT, the award-winning documentary "Voice of La Raza" will air on Channel 11 from 8:30 to 10 o'clock. Anthony Quinn is narrator for the special, which looks at job discrimination and the massive unemployment problems of Spanish-surnamed people in the United States today.

The program won gold medals at film festivals in Atlanta and New York. "Voice of La Raza" was made by the Fair Employment Practices Commission, Washington, D.C. It is the voice of El Barro... from New York to New Mexico to Los Angeles. It is a cry for justice.

Graphically captured by film is all the anger, all of the pride, of this American minority. The program also presents an insight into a culture which preceded the English-speaking majority in America by more than a century.

At the film's conclusion, Alicia Sandoval, hostess of KTTV's "Let's Rap," will take a special wrap-up look at Mexican-American problems in the Los Angeles area.

"ALTERNATIVES," at 8 p.m. Sunday on Channel 11, will present the first of a two-part series featuring members of the San Francisco Encounter-Theatre. Encounter — dramatists

CHUCK DILDINE
Tells how in every little town there is one senior citizen, respected and loved by all. A small town in Iowa was no exception — The general store owner having endeared himself to all.
Time had changed. The lively stable into a garage and the corner grocery into a supermarket, yet because Old Mr. Cass had carried so many on credit during hard times, he struggled on. When one of Mr. Cass' friends found out he still had 320 buggy whips in stock, he persuaded all his fellow club members and friends to buy them up just to help buy the old gent out.
As a customer bought the last buggy whip, Mr. Cass said wistfully, 'Golly, I've had such a run on buggy whips — I just wired Chicago for ten dozen more!'
Folks, you won't get whipped when you trade in that old buggy to Ol' Larry

Juveniles rarin' to turn on the heat at Hollypark

Will '73 Derby winner be seen today?

By HANK HOLLINGSWORTH
Staff Writer

The 1973 Kentucky Derby winner may be unfurled today when the 33rd renewal of the $140,500 Juvenile Championship is run at Hollywood Park.

The richest race in the West for freshman runners—the winter will take home a check for $83,000—has three sizzling candidates for Triple Crown opportunities a year hence.

Two of the leading three characters are boys—Doc Marcus (3-for-3) and Lucky Mike (2-for-2) while the other is a filly, Bold Liz (4-for-6), who shouldn't be shortchanged because the male 2-year-olds in the six-furlong event will be conceding her both weight and experience.

Bold Liz will tote jockey Jorge Tejera and 119 pounds. The boys will carry 122. Bold Liz has run the six-furlong distance before, the boys haven't. So much for Women's Lib.

In deference to Bold Liz, Lucky Mike figures to be the favorite, with Doc Marcus just a shade behind.

Half-brother to MacArthur Park, runnerup to Royal Owl in the 1971 Juvenile, Lucky Mike has sent clockers and backstretch people away in shock. His jockey, Howard Grant, finds him difficult to contain.

Lucky Mike has raced just twice, but he has been extremely impressive. He won his maiden opener by six lengths, then captured his second event in the fastest five and one-half furlongs scored in juvenile history.

Doc Marcus, who was named after a Los Angeles County doctor, not the Welby of TV fame, has impressive 3-race triumphs by margins of 8, 6 and 4 lengths. Cautious Bill Shoemaker will be in his saddle today.

Doc Marcus, however, is making his first start since mid-June. While the Doc was resting, Lucky Mike was making hay in the sunshine.

Bold Liz is a mighty Amazon from the Southwest. She didn't come into today's classic cheap. Her connections—Texans trainer Rod Kaufman and owner Peter Weakley—had to pay for a $7,500 supplementary fee.

The Texans decided to enter Bold Liz after she ran away with a division of the Lassie Stakes last week. Liz is a powerful candidate, but the thought here is that she isn't strong enough yet to contest the boys.

In this field of 11, only two would seem to be of any challenge to the big three: Ancient Title and Our Native.

Ancient Title's last race was a powerful one as he romped to the finish line a five-length victor. He is 2-for-3 and improving, a factor which merits strong consideration at this time of year with 2-year-olds.

Yet, Lucky Mike whipped him by six panels the first time each went head-to-head.

Our Native's early claim to fame was that he finished second to Lucky Mike when Mike, a naughty 2-year-old, set his juvenile record.

Since Lucky Mike and Doc Marcus like to crash from the gate and set a wire-to-wire pace, all kinds of records might be set today. But they might be settling the chase up for Bold Liz.

The little lass has been in heat for three weeks "and she hasn't been leaving the gate like a runner," says Kaufman. "But when she gets in stride, she really turns it on."

Charger Bar aims at rich Vessels Stakes

Los Alamitos which has pioneered the world's richest added money quarter horse races, springs another one loose tonight when world champion Charger Bar tries for her 11th win in the last 12 starts in the $81,550 Vessels Maturity Stakes.

First money of $36,607 will move the four-year-old daughter of Tiny Charger-La Rea Bar ever closer to the $200,000 plateau at the Orange County track.

But getting the job done over the classic 440 yards may not be that easy since she'll be confronted by the breed's newest hero, match race victory Chariwar, who is 3-for-3 since being claimed by the thoroughbred tandem of Bobby Frankel and C.R. (Chay)

Knights from the Vessels Stallion Farm.

One of those races isn't carried on the past performance charts since it was the victory over Hollywood track record holder Indulgo in a match race.

These two figured to dominate the field since each won a heat of the trials in 22-seconds flat.

Others who might be considered for listing on the tote board are the likes of New Mexico invader Native Empress, '70 Golden State Futurity hero in Vogue, world champion three-year-old gelding County Fathom and stakes victress Miss Little Bid.

Adding contention will be the other four qualifiers from the 17 who posted times in the trials eight days earlier. They include Dual Exhaust, Ruby Khan, Plunder Bay and Kipity's Moose.

Of the non-trials winners, Native Empress may draw the most attention since the gray mare had to make her way into the race while qualifying from the rail on a night when the inside was slow. She is a daughter of the brilliant thoroughbred Native Dancer.

Her popularity is noted on the backstretch where she has changed owner's hands four times since March 1.

Native Empress and Chariwar were supplemental entries for the race, meaning it cost their nominators an extra $5,000 for the late filing.

When you say "tough at any distance," you are describing Little Lady Roar.

The five-year-old daughter of Uppur, has won five races this year, four of them being at different distances.

Friday night at Los Alamitos, Little Lady Roar walloped the best distance horses at the track, winning by 1 1/2 lengths in the $7,000 feature at 870 yards before 9,787 fans.

At the start, Red Chigger Bar, a speed horse going off as the 13-1 favorite, tried to grab the lead, but was no match for Little Lady as the latter took off and opened up a two-length advantage going into the turn.

Red Chigger Bar and Classy Rocket tried to close the gap, but Little Lady Roar wouldn't be caught. Her winning time of 45.3 seconds was only a tenth of a second off the track record of 45.2 seconds set two years ago by Bull Rastus.

ARNIE'S NOT REALLY UNHAPPY
Lurking only one shot off the pace, Arnold Palmer casts worried expression after shooting 70 Friday in American Golf Classic at Akron. The old master still is seeking his first win of '72.

3 share Classic golf lead

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Rookie Steve Melnyk struggled through sweltering heat Friday, shooting a two-under-par 68 for a share of the second-round lead in the $150,000 American Golf Classic.

The 25-year-old Melnyk, a former American and British Amateur champion, had a 36-hole total of 137, three under par on the wet Firestone Country Club course.

He was tied for the top spot with former PGA champion Ray Floyd and Bert Vancey. Vancey had a 68 while Floyd's 71 was one over par on the 7,180-yard layout.

Lurking just off their shoulders was the menacing figure of Arnold Palmer, the 42-year-old master who is seeking his first victory of the season.

Palmer scrambled to a 70 despite some erratic driving — he hit only five fairways — for a 138, just one stroke off the pace. He was tied with Jim Wiechers, who had a 68.

Dave Eichenberger, who had the day's best round with a blazing 65, headed a big group at 139. Also at the figure were J.C. Snead, Hale Irwin, Tom Uozas, Mike Hill, Kermil Zarley and Gibby Gilbert.

Hill and Snead had 66s, Gilbert a 67, Irwin and Uozas 68 and Zarley stumbled to a 73 in heat that reached into the 90s with matching humidity.

First-round leader Ron Cerrudo, who had an opening 65, went 10 strokes higher to 75 for 140. Defending champion Jerry Heard rallied for a 67-141.

British Open champion Lee Trevino, Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player and Tony Jacklin skipped this event.

Van Blom nears bid to Munich

KENT, Conn. (AP) — Jim Dietz and John Van Blom scored semifinal victories in single sculls competition Friday on Lake Waramaug to advance to their predicted two-man battle for the right to represent the United States in the Olympic Games in Munich.

There will be six boats in the single sculls finale of the U.S. Olympic rowing trials this morning, but the contest may wind up as a two-boat race.

Dietz, the national champion from New York Athletic Club, handily won his heat 7:17.91 while Van Blom, the 1968 U.S. Olympic sculler from Long Beach Rowing Assn., won an equally easy race 7:15.65.

The opposition for Dietz and Van Blom will come from former U.S. single champ Bill Maher, Detroit Boat Club; Peter Cortes, Vesper Boat Club; Paul Wilson, Narragansett Rowing Club, and Bill Tytus, Seattle Tennis Club.

The pairs without coxswain competition saw national champion Dick Lyon and Larry Hough of the Stamford, Calif. Crew Assn. win their heat 7:06.54.

Ferrari trio heavy Watkins Glen pick

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. — There are three fragile-looking Ferrari team cars entered in today's six-hour race at Watkins Glen, and unless there is a major turnaround one of them should win.

That's the way it has been all season in competition for the World Championship of makes. This is the final stop in an 10-race tour and the bright red cars from Modena, Italy, have triumphed in eight of them. Their only miss was at Le Mans, and for a good reason: Ferrari didn't enter any 24-hour events this year.

Thus, with the championship already tucked away

Parsons earns Dixie 500 berth

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Benny Parsons of Ellerbe, N.C., led second day qualifiers Friday for Sunday's Dixie 500 stock car race when he wheeled his Mercury around the Atlanta International Raceway at 155.688 miles per hour.

Parsons earned the No. 16 starting berth for Sunday's 40-car field, which will take the green starting flag at 1:30 p.m. EDT.

Parsons' speed was sixth-best during the first two days of qualifying, but the first 15 starting positions were determined Thursday when David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C., captured the pole position.

John Van Blom wins again

John Van Blom of Long Beach advanced to finals in single sculls Friday with easy victory. Van Blom will bid for right to represent U.S. at Olympic Games in today's finals at Kent, Conn.

Tie in French Open

BIARRITZ, France (AP) — Britons Douglas MacClelland and Peter Oosterhuis tied for the second round lead Friday in the French Open golf championship with 132 totals.

The great burger put-on.

Tasee
For summer, we wanted you to have some fun with that great American institution, the hamburger. So at Tasee, we came up with the biggest put-on around — the Big-T shirt. It's the extra-long shirt with the star-spangled Tasteeburger all over the back. Available only at Tasee in S, M, L and XL. For 79¢, it's a lot of shirt. And we aren't putting you on.

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Consolidation, increase of resources run in alternate phases during this busy year. Infatuation leads the way thru midyear reorganization and changes in your daily living. Today's naiveness somehow manage to please those of the opposite sex more than their own.

Arles (March 21-April 19)
There's nothing to be gained by scattering the time and money by traveling just to be on the move. Stay near home and make yourself useful.

Arles (May 24-26)
Sunday in an old pattern promises nostalgia. Not much is new in the sphere of romance and sentimental concerns.

Gemini (May 21-June 20)
Gather scattered friends and make time for a reunion Sunday for healing old references. Correspondence is favored.

lax this Sunday and build your inner strength with serene prayer. Family get-togethers bring many pleasant benefits.
 Libra (Sep. 23-Oct. 23)
 Those near and familiar produce surprises, enough to make a most interesting interval without ranging far afield seeking marvels.
 Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
 Let others pursue their pet projects; they may have more enthusiasm than you. It's all right to follow the simplest easiest path now.
 Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
 Be patient while early complexities run their course.
 There will be time to review your resources, plan future rearrangements.
 Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 By afternoon you'll be glad you held your tongue in the morning. Do you still share community work. Find or give a party in the evening.
 Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 Make this a low-key day with only minimum activity. Study, meditation, prayer, bring slow growth, profound spiritualism.
 Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20)
 Being gentle and friendly comes as naturally as your or approach now. You have everything to gain by simple acceptance of people.

JULY 24-30

Plenty of thunder from way up yonder.

Hurricane season begins... Wright Brothers flight July 27, 1903... Full Buck Moon July 26 plus a partial eclipse of Moon in afternoon... Dog Days now... First Masonic Lodge established in Boston July 30, 1733... Average length of days for week, 14 hours, 38 minutes... Bomber crashed into Empire State Building July 28, 1946... Who chatters to you, will chatter of you.

Old Farmer's Riddle: What is that which no one wants, but if you have it you don't want to lose? (Answer below.)

Ask the Old Farmer: I am 83 years old and in all my years I have still not heard the explanation for the three balls hung outside a pawn shop. Can you tell me? H.R., Tampa, Florida.

It's good to hear from a man who has weathered so many years. The three golden balls over a pawn shop constitute the coat of arms of the Lombards; the Lombards were the first money-lenders in London.

Home Hint: An unfailing remedy for sleeplessness is a glass of warm milk with a large pinch of salt in it... When storing furs in the summer, lay a yellow candle in or near them and there will be little danger of worms... A shoe polish will often improve the appearance of a scratch on formal wear... Riddle answer: A house.

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECASTS

Weather Tip of the Week: Heavy weekend rain for Chicago. New England Coastal: Begins with a rain storm that lasts most of week. Warming by week's end.

Northern & Inland New England: A nor'easter brings heavy rain at first, then partly cloudy and a trace of rain. Greater New York: Showers through midweek, then clear for rest of week.

Middle Atlantic Region: Light rain through midweek, then fair, hot and humid for rest.

Chicago-Great Lakes Region: Partly cloudy with showers through most of week, heavy rain by weekend.

Greater Ohio Valley: Hot and humid with variable cloudiness all week.

Southern States: Begins hot and humid, then light rain before midweek and continuing through week's end.

Northern Plains: Begins with showers, then partly cloudy by midweek with heavy rain by week's end.

Rocky Mountains-Central Plains: Rain almost all week. Clearing by week's end.

Pacific Northwest: Partly cloudy at first, then clear and pleasant by midweek, and partly cloudy by week's end.

Northern California-Coastal: Clear and warm through midweek with highs in 70s, then fog, light drizzle and cooler through weekend.

Southern California: Clear and warm through midweek with highs in 80s, then increasingly overcast and cooler through weekend.

Clinic Jobs for gardeners

Q—Please tell me why the enclosed buds from my gladiolus dry and don't bloom. I water them what I think they need. I had beautiful ones last year. Can you tell me what kind of burr the one enclosed is? It is taking my lawn and has just about killed all the grass. What should I get to get rid of those weeds? Tilda Baumann, 347 Juniper St., Long Beach 90814.

A.—The buds look very much like they have been damaged by thrips. Thrips will even cause carnation buds to shrivel and dry. Use an insecticide spray that lists "thrips" among other pests on the label. Add a horticultural wetter to the water-mixed insecticide spray. Spray early in the forenoon, or late afternoon when the pests are attacking the plants or flowers. The enclosed weed with the round seed heads didn't have any leaves. If these weeds have runner branches and clover-like leaves, it is burr clover. Take some with leafage to your local nurseryman and have him double check it. Whether it is burr clover or fennel, which has the carrot or fern-like leaves.

CLUB NOTES

The Orange County Bromeliad Society will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ehrig at the Los Nietos Nursery, 11527 E. Slauson Ave., Whittier, Sunday, Aug. 6, 1:30 p.m. All guests are welcome.

Sen. Pell will run in poll race

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — U.S. Sen. Claiborne Pell is enmeshed in a tough campaign for reelection against former Republican Gov. John H. Chafee, but the senator will be doing another kind of running Saturday, Pell, 53, will be first of a number of runners carrying polluted water from the Providence and Seekonk rivers to the unpolluted areas of Narragansett Bay in a program called "run to save the bay."

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

One of the wonders of the world, the Hanging Gardens of Babylon which is on the banks of the Euphrates River and is comprised of 400 square feet of terraced structure rising 100 feet, was built by King Nebuchadnezzar about 5 B.C. He built it — sure must have loved her—for his wife Princess Amytis, who longed for her hilly homeland. The gardens were planted with shapely trees, showy shrubs, and colorful flowers.

Actually, it isn't a hanging garden in the true sense of the word. A hanging basket more aptly fits the meaning of "hanging garden." A garden of this type can be found in the friendly city of Victoria on the island of Vancouver, about twenty miles west of the Canadian mainland of British Columbia.

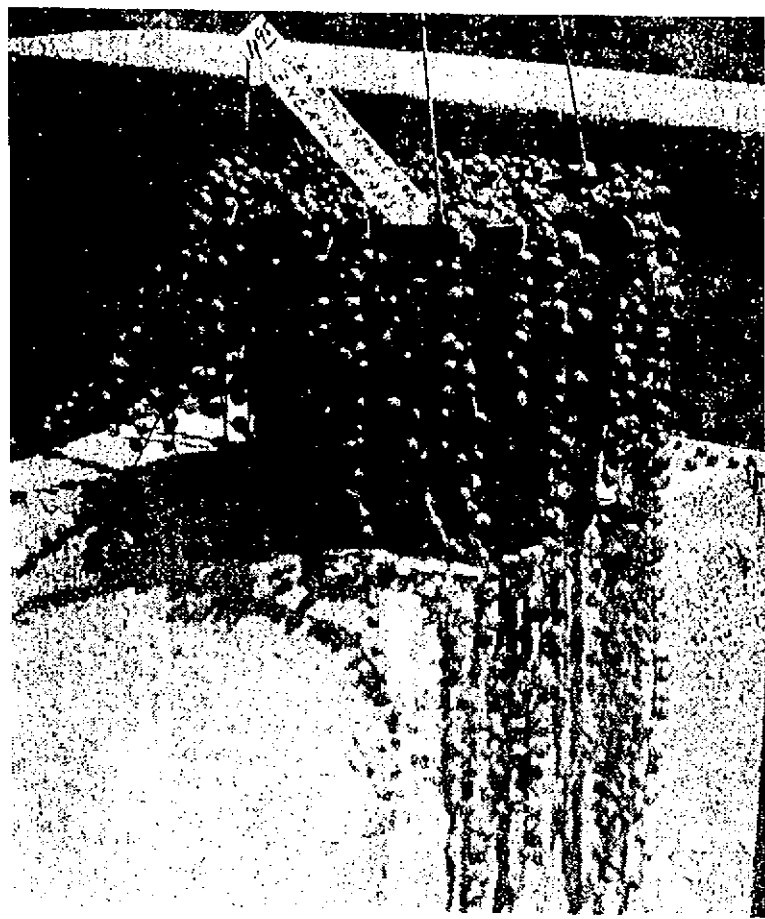

HANGING baskets can be planted with arching branched plants, or vines that provide flowers. Annuals and perennials too may be planted. Just to name a few, let's start with a succulent vining plant that's fairly new, the senecio rowleyanus "emerald beads." The beads are as vivid an emerald green as one can possibly imagine. Some gardeners that know or have the "donkey's tail" plant feel the Emerald Beads are more the eye-catcher of the two succulents.

A colorful basket plant that seems tailor-fit for such use is the long-blooming fuchsia. It adds lots of color in a shaded patio, hanging from a tree, the eave of a roof or in a bath house, or porch.

Two outstandingly colorful woody shrubs with graceful arching branches are pink-flowered Abelia goucheri and white-blossomed grandiflora, Sasanqua camellia. The Abelia for full sun to shade, Sasanqua for shade, also full sun in milder sectors.

REDWOOD baskets with spaces between the laths for drainage can be used, or plastic or wire baskets. All should have an inch of moistened sphagnum moss (not peat moss) lining. The moss must be thoroughly soaked in a bucket of water, then squeezed firmly to get out excess water. This is done to avoid having the dry moss absorb the moisture from the prepared soil as plants are watered. The moss also prevents the water from quickly washing the soil away and out to the hanging basket.

The prepared soil should

consist of of good soil and half organic material. Organic material may be leaf mold, fine ground bark, compost soil, pre-moistened sphagnum peat moss, planter mix mulch, or an already mixed potting soil. The soil should be finger firmed under and around the root ball so the water doesn't rush through a loosely packed soil.

Hanging plants, like pot or container plants need more frequent feeding than similar garden plants. Light applications of pellet fertilizer, or liquid plant food in monthly to six week intervals help the root-confined plants grow better. (The succulent plants are fed lightly—perhaps two or three times during the year and with much less nitrogen content in the complete plant food.)

LET'S not forget there's still time to grow some live color in the sunny garden area, whether it is a large or narrow section. Annuals usually grow faster and bloom sooner than the perennials unless the perennials are already blooming, or in bud and about ready to blossom.

Group planting of the same varieties in each group presents a more natural look than if haphazardly mixed. Size of the plants determines in which part of the garden they are to be planted.

As an example, large zinnias usually grow larger than asters, hence should be planted in the back of the garden. The smaller size groups for the middle area and the lowest-growing plants in the foreground.
